SCOTT BOURKE

To my twin brother (Scott) only kidding. It's funny though your co-incidence with me, but have a good summer see ya next year.
Scott

Scott,

It was great not having you in one of my classes this year. I heard you and Bummy had a little fight in the middle of the year. Well forget it. I will see you next year and I hope you in one of Scalzo's classes.

Mass

Bourke,

It's been bad knowing you and I hope that you have an awful summer and I hope you move away. If you think I'm kidding, I'm not but who says I'm not a liar.

P.S. Tell Mr. Gilman I think he's a Stubborn fagget!
Ron Weber

I agree with everything Pat said, that way he won't get ~~hurt~~ excited and may hurt someone else. I was lucky this year, you will tell you any way, you weren't in any of my classes. I hope I have that same good luck next year. See you next year. I hope I should

Scott,

It was fun in Math, even though you didn't belong in it, because you couldn't multiply 2×2 . Now that summer is here, I can finally get the peace quiet that I couldn't get because you were talking so much at lunch time. Hope you have a nice summer and I hope I do (or) see you in one of my classes.

Better luck next year,
Patrice

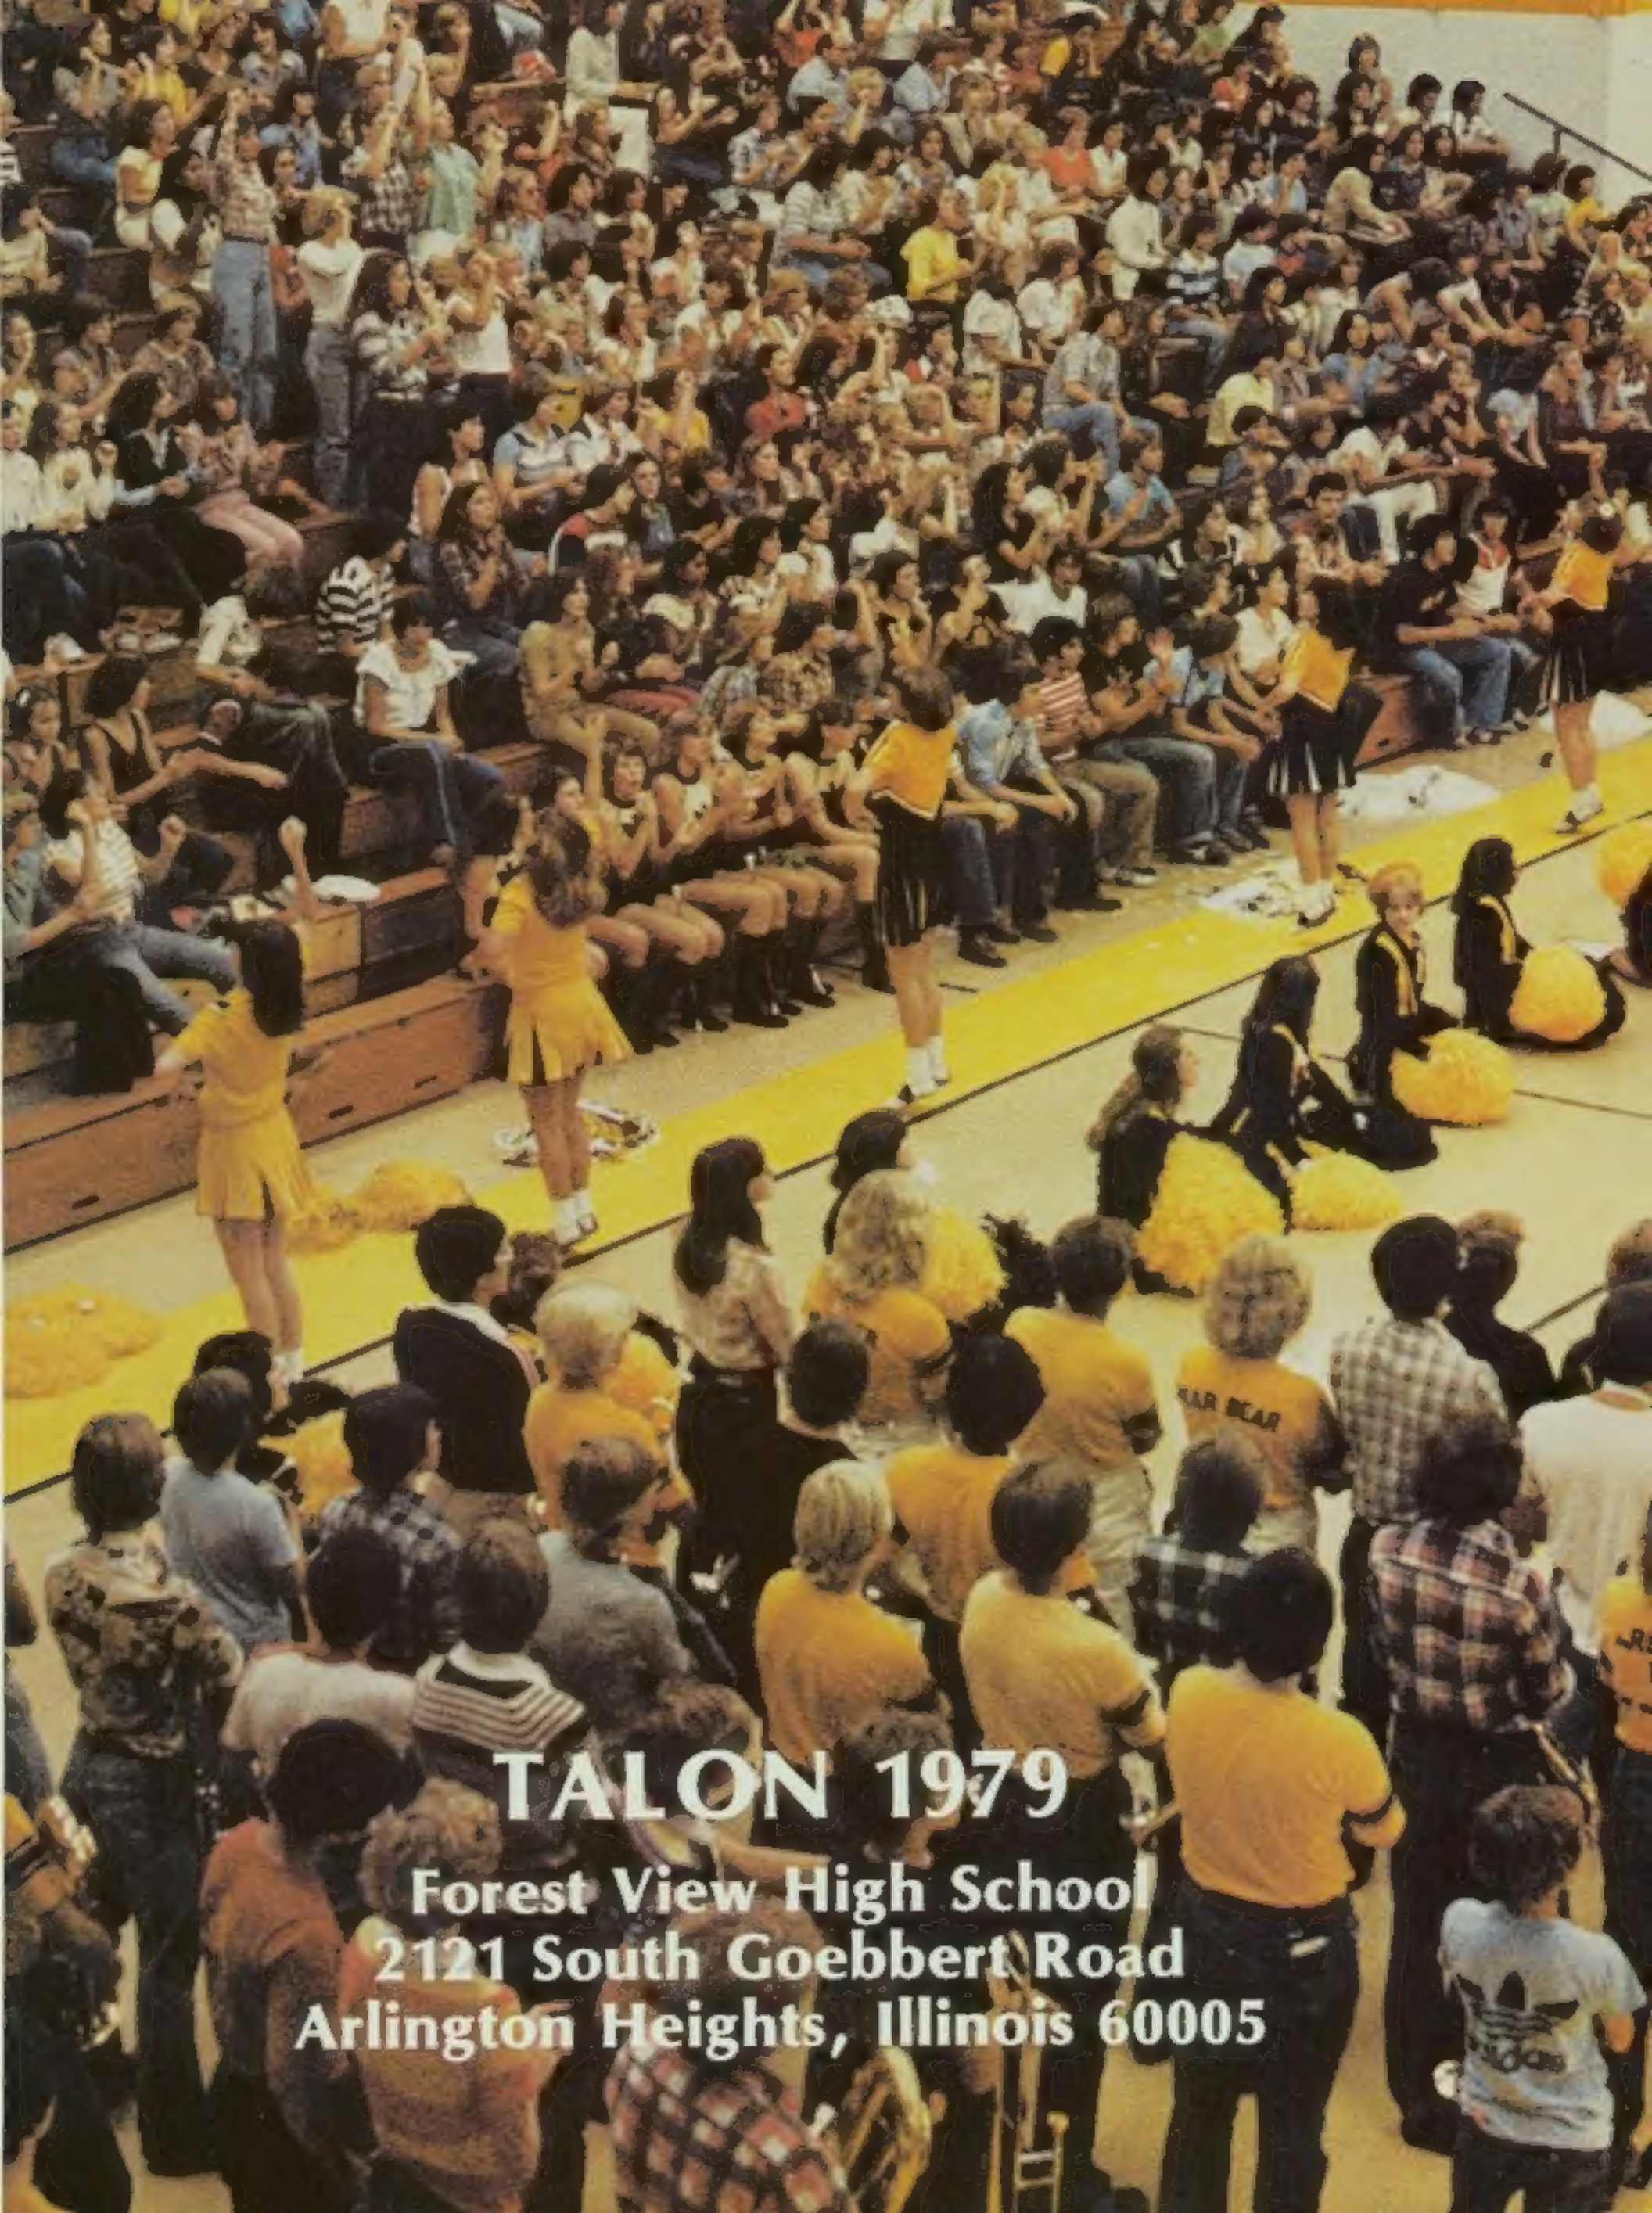

Scott,
I was like one big party. To bad the only one that got drunk at the party was you! Hope I don't have you in a class next year. I mean I want to graduate in '80, not '81. If I know you, you'll have a wild + party like summer so have a good one. Good luck in '80 (you may need it) and in the future (you may need that too). Hey, don't tell me you're not in the 5-year plan? I sure hope not. I Bourke is enough. Oh, well I have to stop now. Cough! I am. The pen is starting steam. Cough!

P.S. POLLOCKS ARE THE BEST!
Kary Bourke

Scott,

My car is not a beater, it is a race car. Waaah! C'mon man Math just great. I mean a heart attack + Mrs. Kelley all in the same year. Too much. After I get out of college and produce my own Game show I'll invite you to be a guest. Should I name it
"Math for the Blind" Or the "Mrs Kelley Torture Show." I'll still have to decide. I guess I'm glad I got to know yer, but sometimes I wonder. You made C'mon man Math karable. Good!
Luck as a bug Search
See you next year
Paul M. A.

Scott,
It was pretty fun knowing you in school. See you next year. and during the summer. good luck future senior your friend
Tony

Forest View, our Forest View,
We will always remember you

For the friends we have known these years

For the laughter and the tears

For the nooks adorned with gold the girls conquered their fears.

We'll remain forever true

To our Alma Mater, Forest View,

ARCHERS AIM FOR BULL'S-EYE

Although this year's Archery team did not have many winning tournaments, the girls involved displayed a great deal of effort and team spirit. There were four returning seniors on the team this season: Sandy Hermansen, Sue Hitch, Jill Friberg, and Linda Steger. Junior Karen Ellingsworth was one of the team's most outstanding players, and made it to the state championship. Many freshmen joined the team this year, giving next year's team a good chance to become even stronger.

ARCHERY TEAM - Bottom row: Sue Hitch, Brenda Davis, Sandy Hermansen, Karen Ellingsworth. Top Row: Sharon Hermansen, Coach Stearns, Jill Friberg, Karen Steger, Cheryl Frahm, Sue Elndge, Sue Henrikson, Jean Reiher, Kathy Bretiman, Linda Steger.

Seniors Sue Hitch and Jill Friberg aim for the target.

Helping Sue Henrikson with the arrow is Mrs. Stearns.

This year's tennis teams had a fairly good season with the Varsity team finishing 12th in conference with an overall record of 8 and 12. The J.V. finished 2nd in the South Division with a record of 7 and 6. On the Varsity team, Jacquie Anderson and Kim Langowski were number one doubles, and Evie Soteropolous, number one singles. There were several outstanding players on the J.V. team. Both Coach Myers and Coach Travis believe these girls will make a great team next season.

Senior Barb Jacobson practices her forehand shot.

VOLLEYBALL FINISHES 19-8

Consistency was the Varsity Volleyball Team's strongest point during this year's fall season. This outstanding quality helped the girls earn a most commendable record of 19-8. The team, led by Captains Denise Maybach and Debbie Duncan, carried their Falcon pride to the Maine South Tournament in the hopes of finally beating Rolling Meadows. Unfortunately, they were unsuccessful. After a great deal of hard work, the girls reached Districts where they captured third place. Congratulations to the team for a job well done.

The J.V. Team had an excellent season with an overall record of 11-7. Sophomores Andra Gremer, Jan Remus, and Captain Debbie Boe played exceptionally well this year. The team placed first in the South Division Conference securing another record of 10-2.

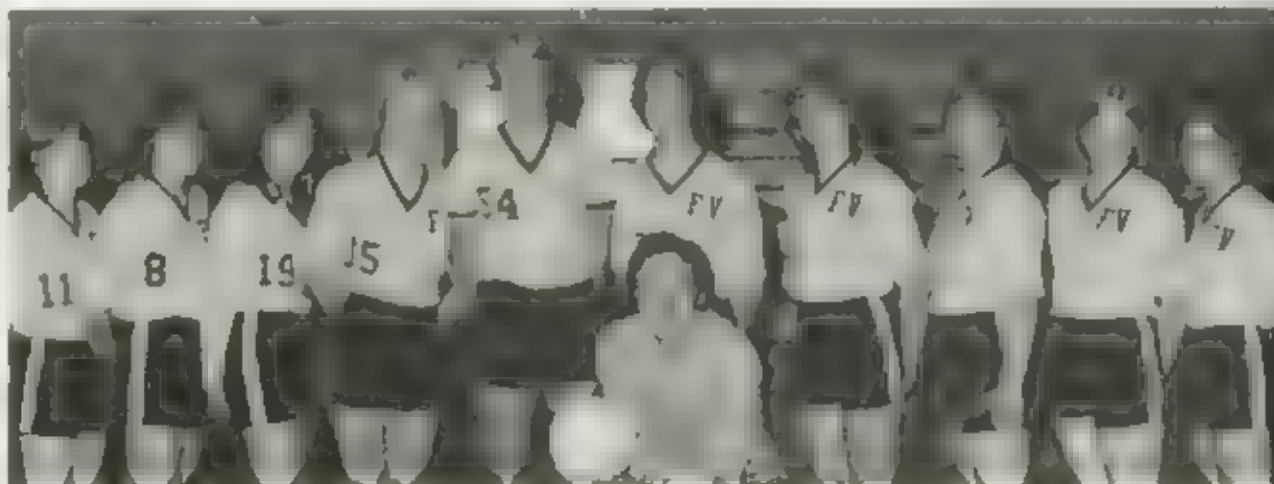

The Freshmen Volleyball Team also had a good year despite a few injuries. These girls will be advantageous to the J.V. Team next year.

Seniors Maybach and Krause dive for the ball.

PASCUS PUTTS To MVP

During a game, Diane Kramer takes a minute to relax before she aims her swing at the ball.

Supplied with a new coach and fresh spirit, the girls were ready to begin another golf season. In their first game the team played on the toughest course and beat Wheeling by 42 strokes. Forest View also hosted the 1978 IHSA District Golf Tournament later in the year. This included twenty-eight entries and three full teams. Paula Pascus, a freshman, earned the honor of Most Valuable Player with an average of 53, and is a very good prospect for future years. Linda Anderson and Diane Kramer each had an average of 60. Jan Kowalski, Lisa Marion, and Pam Patton had averages of 64, 68, and 83, respectively. On the whole, the team recorded an overall average of 240 for the season.

Coach Eric Bayles replaced Miss Smith for the season. He greatly enjoyed instructing the girls because of their enthusiasm and school spirit. According to Mr. Bayles, this golf season was one for gaining experience and will be beneficial to the team in years to come.

Deep concentration helps Linda Anderson win.

FALCONS CHEER TO THE TOP

During halftime of the final football game, the cheerleaders line up and put some spirit into the crowd.

At a football game, Juliet Vanassche cheers to the crowd.

Pre-llm - Bottom Row: Patti Hahn, Sandy Hodges, Antoinette Hart, Row 2: Sharon McDermott, Laura Langowski, Linda Hunsinger.

This year's cheerleaders started working to raise spirit before school ever began. In June the new squads attended cheerleading camp at Illinois State University, where they learned many new cheers. When the school year started, they began practicing three days a week in order to prepare for the football season. Led by Miss Bastounes, the cheerleaders were in charge of Fall Festival Spirit. They sold mums, decorated the gym, and helped with the planned activities. The crowd seemed to respond well to many of the new cheers. On the whole, the cheerleaders had a good year, which helped the Falcon teams to great seasons.

Tina Squillacioti cheers for a touchdown.

FALCONS SHOOT FOR TWO

This years girls basketball team was hard working, was made up of tough competitors. The year started with a tournament at Willowbrook High School, where the team came in third place. The varsity team was young, being made up of three seniors and seven juniors. Freshman Sherri Brinkman, also on varsity, was the leading rebounder for the team. In addition, Janet Remus, a sophomore, moved up to varsity not long after the season started. Debbie Duncan, Kathy Krause, and Linda Butzen were all seniors who brought several years of experience to the team. Juniors Cheryl O'Hara and Cindy Lopacowski were also outstanding. The J.V. and freshman teams worked just as hard and helped to prove that Forest View girls basketball had Falcon spirit.

GIRLS FLY TO 6-6 RECORD

GIRLS SWIMMING - Bottom row: M. Maestranzi, S. Shubeck, M. Lockowitz, J. McCormick, D. Mally, P. Carlson, D. Lorenz, J. Mayer. Row 2: N. Higgins, M. Hoppe, C. Brettman, S. Carlson, M. Byerly, K. Petersen,

This years girls swim team finished its regular season with a dual meet record of 6 wins and 6 losses. The team is primarily freshmen and sophomores. This will be beneficial to the growth of the swim record next year. The backbone of this years team was Senior Pam Funk, Junior Nancy Van Buskirk, Sophomores Trina Lira, Cathy Lucansky, Dennise Szady and Freshmen Linda Wright. Important also were the performances of the 18 Freshmen members. In summary, the achievements of each team member added to the success of the team. The coach, Mr. John Hillary said "I'm looking forward to a future that is bright and successful for the girls."

Trina Lira strokes to make state.

GIRLS VAULT WITH STYLE

The Girls Gymnastics team began their season undefeated. Hersey, Prospect, and Elk Grove were likely to be very tough competition for the girls this year. Coaches, Judy Harwood and Linda Mustari, are very proud to have begun their coaching careers with a team as agile and skillful as that of Forest View. Senior Sue Koch is one of the Falcon's top competitors in all-around competition. Seniors Lisa Schild and Karen Holtman are also very competitive on beam and floor. The J.V. and Freshmen teams look very promising for future years. Like the Varsity, the J.V. began the season undefeated and intends to stay that way.

Showing her talent on the uneven parallel bars is Katie Wagner.

Darlene Ono, Top Row: Natalie Traina, Karen Holtman, Jennifer Vihnanek, Lisa Schild, Sue Koch.

FRESHMAN GIRLS GYMNASTICS - Bottom Row: Beth Jongleux, Sherry Stecki, Lisa Dreyer, Kim Moravec, Gina Marzullo, Tricia Dowejko, Top Row: Sheryl Koch, Mary Miskovetz, Maria

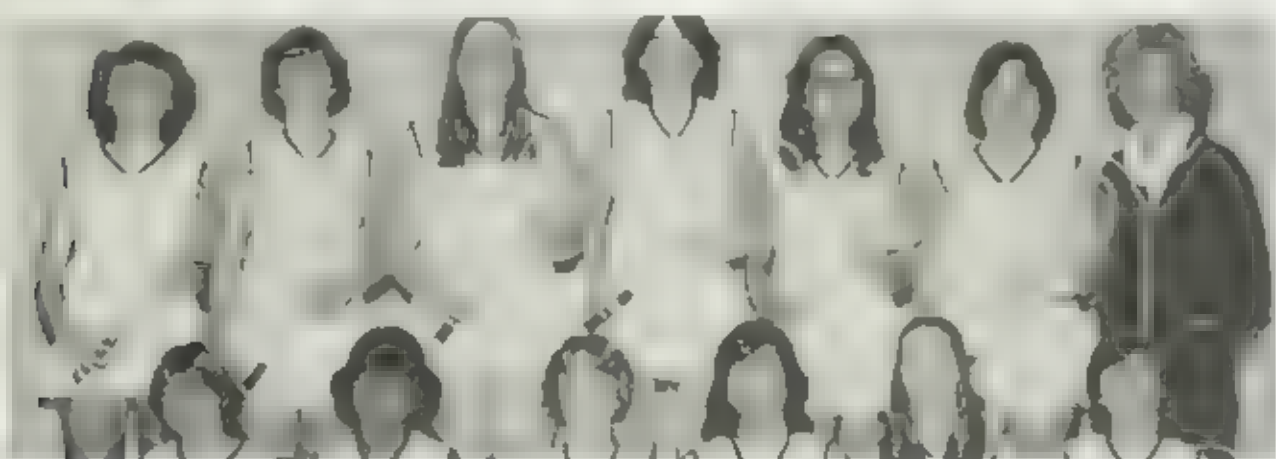

Guglielmo, Diana Guglielmo, Katie Wagner, Marcia Michalski, Jeri Romano, and Mrs. Harwood.

BADMINTON TAKES A SWING

VARSITY BADMINTON - Bottom Row: Renee Losinski, Tina Tucker, Margo Ford, Sherri Pharr, Liz Orpano, Mary Strak, Sandy Hermansen, Lottie Pennisi. Top Row: Niki Chalmers, Jill

Paisley, Mary Long, Linda Knol, Mary Karcz, Joanne Koenig, Cindy Zoller, Jan Sobczyk, Mrs. Frisby.

Schwander, Christine Borkowski, Laura Williams, Sue Peck, Jana Yoshimura, Laura Hallberg, Mrs. Frisby

Improving her technique Jan Sobczyk concentrates on keeping the birdie in-bounds.

The 1979 Badminton team consisted of mainly young members this season. They had only six returning players on the team. Returning seniors were Jill Paisley and Sandy Hermansen. The third senior was newcomer Sherri Pharr. Another newcomer this year was the coach, Mrs. Sharon Frisby. The rest of the team consisted of mostly underclass newcomers. Badminton is the oldest inter-scholastic sport for girls, but is still not gaining the recognition it deserves. The Mid-Suburban League has divided the teams into four divisions. Our team now belongs in the South Division. The coach has high hopes for a strong team next year.

With her eyes on the birdie Sherri Pharr sets up a point

BOWLERS STRIKE A VICTORY

Many changes took place for the Bowling team this year. One change was the location of the meets. All meets were held at the Arlington Heights Lanes rather than Fair Lanes. Another change was in the team format. In past years there was an 8 girl Varsity team. This year squad was divided into a 5 girl Varsity and a 4 girls J.V. The Varsity got off to a slow start, but it didn't seem to affect them. They pulled from a 5th place in Conference to a final finish of First place at the Conference meet. The girls didn't make it to state, but did finish with a respectable third place in the District meet.

Christie, Karen and Darlene check the total.

Concentrating on strikes helps Debbie Ladendorf bowl high games.

GIRLS RUN WITH STYLE

GIRLS CROSS COUNTRY: Karen Kloss, Donna Vaughn, Molly Blechl, Heidi Lehmann, Jodi Libretti, Chris Belmonte, Dana Smith, William Mohrmann.

Dhein, D. Chalmers, S. Madej, C. Powers, M. Kaempf. Top Row - R. Hedstrom, N. Basounes, J. Friberg, H. Lehmann, P. Funk, S. Sinadinos, S. Biedar, A. Lesser, E. Schwarz, A. Gremer, J. Belo, S. Hesner, D. Van Huele.

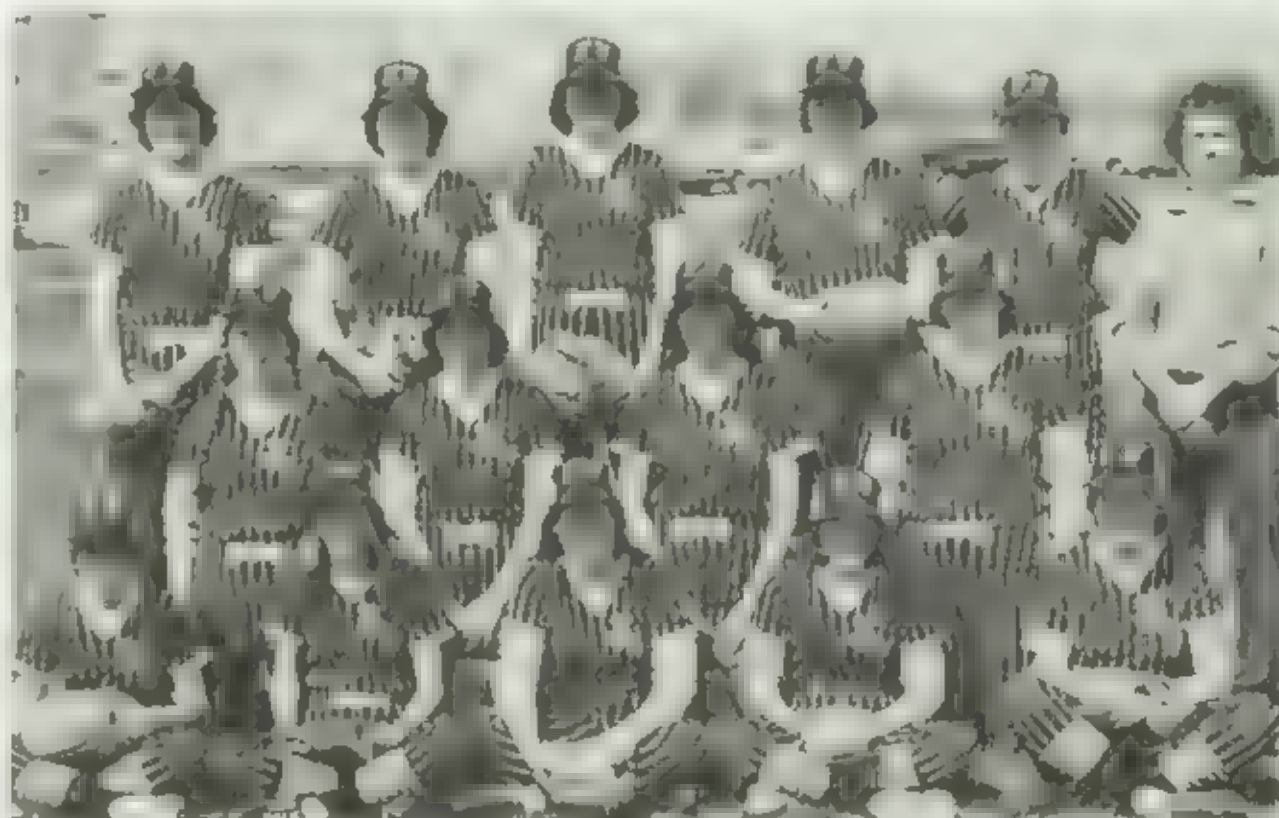

Although girls track wasn't very successful as a team this year, the members did break several school records and set a few Conference records. Some individuals who broke these running records were Dawn Sarni, Andra Gremer, and Heidi Lehman. The relay team of Heidi Lehman, Laurie Maybach, Lori Whalen and Pam Funk were also successful in making new records. Running wasn't the only event the girls did well. Eileen Schwarz and Cindy Powers were specialists in the shotput. A new girls activity has begun at Forest View. The Girls Cross Country made its debut as a fall sport this year. Because of it being new and unfamiliar the team only consisted of 7 runners. Now that the word has gotten out, many girls have already signed up for next years team making dreams of better and more competition very possible.

SOFTBALL WINS M.S.L. So.

Varsity Softball wound up the season with a spectacular win loss record of 17-6. With a batting average of about .400 and an excellent defense these girls were the Mid Suburban Conference South Champions. Much help for the winning came from the most valuable player Debbie Porto. J.V. Softball also had an excellent win loss record of 10-8. They came back with two spectacular wins after losing to Prospect and Schaumburg. Softball is a very strong program because it is played in the summer for Park District as well as during the season. F.V. girls play about fifty summer games. Coaches Joanne Travis and Al Beard strongly believe that Girls Softball will be a traditionally winning sport!

An overhead drive by Sandy Hermansen wins the badminton tournament for Forest View.

This year in Badminton the Forest View girls had a hard working season. The girls struggled through to win their trophy at Ridgewood High School. Badminton team strength lies in the doubles tournaments. Coach Karen Biggs hopes that in the future these girls can work to achieve better scores in the singles tournaments. The team regrets to see its most outstanding player, senior Cindy Sarna leave. The coach strongly believes that in next years season the returning players will bring Forest View to the top! Returning seniors for the 1979 season are: Sandy Hermansen, and Jill Paisley. Coach Karen Biggs who has since left Forest View will be greatly missed. The new coach taking her place is Mrs. Frisby.

While practicing Jill Paisley smashes the birdie.

Team effort made this year's Varsity Football team a huge success. Their Head Coach Fred Lussow claims we had the best collection of athletes ever in Forest View. They ended their season with a 9-3 record. Forest View won their Division Title by beating Rolling Meadows 21-20 then going on to their first game of the playoffs and beating Aurora West 15-9. They then proceeded to play Glenbrook South in the Quarter Final beating them 21-14 to advance to the Semi-finals. They took a hard loss to Buffalo Grove. (20-14). Jeff Glazner, Ron Laramie, Jim Mauraskis, Jeff "Mr. Offense" Nelson, Pat Schmiederer, and Tedd Petrik were named All Conference Players. Tedd was also named All-American.

Tri-captains Mike Hassen, Ang Damiano and Mike Matella lead the sophomore team through a respectable season. Two main highlights of the season include two shutouts: they trampled down Palatine (14-0) and dominated Elk Grove (14-0). Great improvements were made on tackling and defense. There were only three first downs allowed by the defense at Palatine. Offense looked promising with Mike Matella and Bill Liden as quarterbacks. "Another year behind them and they'll be a good varsity team," states Mr. Joe Macarol. The team had a hard time putting their talents together earlier in the season. The freshmen had a promising conclusion under the coaching of Mr. Paul Douglas, head coach, and Mr. Mark Thorne and Mr. Zidron. The promising frosh and sophomore squads look forward to a good season next year.

The 1978 Varsity soccer team was superb. Their regular season record was 13-1, and the final season record was an outstanding 20-2-1. Besides taking first place in the MSL, the MSL South, and being named the sectional champs, the Forest View Falcons took third place in the IHSA State Tournament. This was the first trip downstate in Forest View history. The most valuable player this year was senior Wally Hegel, and for the second year in a row our all state player was senior Tom Sroka. Our leading scorers were Nick Racz with 22, and Tom Sroka with 27. The Falcons were undefeated in the month of October, and managed to win sixteen games in a row without a loss - eight of which were shut-outs. Besides the Varsity having a winning season, the J.V., the sophomores, and the freshmen also had excellent seasons this year. Head coach Al Beard feels that next year's Varsity Soccer Team will do very well because of the experience they had this year, and will be prepared to tackle new and different challenges head on.

Warming up before a game, are Sroka and Racz.

HARRIERS RUN TO 12-3 RECORD

This year's Cross Country Team had ability, youth, and excitement. The Falcons quickly won their first invite, walking away with just about every trophy and medal that was given out. Kevin Higgins captured the individual crown with Dan Barron (3rd), Tony Locosio (5th), Phil Lexow (12th), Jeff Kloster (13th) and Randy Klotz (15th). Sophomore Kevin Murray took top honors by winning the Frosh-Soph race, while the Frosh-Soph Team repeated the team victory. The rest of the varsity team consisted of Kevin Murray, Jim Misura, Dean Hoppocsh, Bob Hilliger, Kevin Erikson, Mike Baker, Mike Yendrzewski, Dan Sloan, Jeff Perkins, and Ron Sakata. The team was so young that in years to come the Falcon Harriers are going to be in the top of the conference. Frosh Randy Russo who ran sophomore all year should be a top contender.

This year's distance runners kept up the Falcon tradition by qualifying the two mile relay team down state in Charleston. The team consisted of Loren Reale, Jeff Kloster, Mike Yaccino, and Kevin Higgins who anchored most of the year. The four boys placed 1st at Lake Forest, 1st in the Prospect Invite, 2nd in the Forest View Invite, 2nd in Conference, 2nd in Districts, 1st in all their duel meets and 13th in state. The two mile relay also broke a school record of 8:01 with a 7:58.06 which missed the state finals by .56 seconds. Jim Herkert played a major part in the field events when he qualified down state in the discus. Jim placed 2nd or better in duels including District Champ. The 440 relay consisted of Steve Linker, Mike Veseling, Bart Holgreve, and Kurt Jones. They had a good year, barely missing state.

GOLFERS SWING UP TO PAR

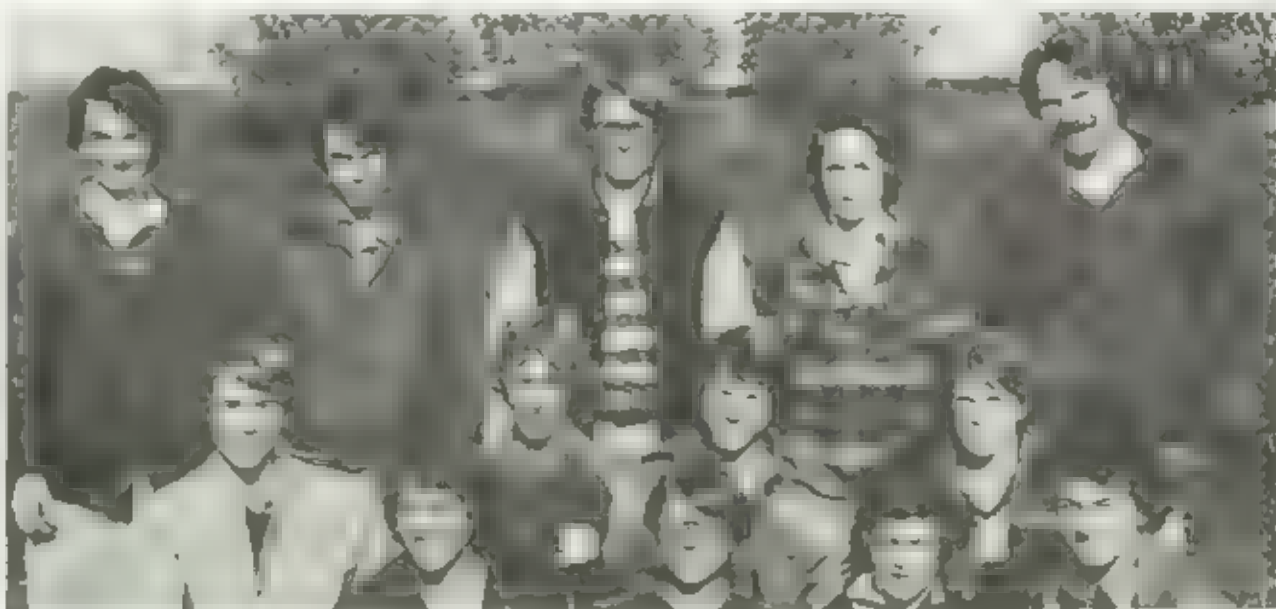

This year the Boys' Golf Team did much better than expected. It was a young team with mostly sophomores, juniors, and a few seniors on Varsity. The record of the team was 6-8, and the three top players were B. Randby, who was voted MVP, C. Anderson, and J. Sinkler. The team placed 7th out of 14 teams in Conference, but were supposed to be 10th. Next year the golf team will be a strong one. The Frosh-Soph team had a record of 6-7 for the year. They had several freshmen on the team and only three sophomores. J. Cerza had the lowest average and G. Esposito had the lowest freshmen average. The Frosh-Soph team placed 8th in their Conference out of 14 teams.

The Varsity Tennis Team this year was coached by Mr. Toleman. Their season last spring wasn't a very good one; their record was 5-15. However, nine of those fifteen losses were very close games. The win could have gone either way. The team came in 5th in the division with top players Kole Whitney, Mike Belo, and Scott Wulfi. Mr. Toleman is looking for a much better team with all but two of the Varsity players returning. It's expected that Forest View will be in 2nd place next year, just behind Prospect. The Frosh-Soph team was coached by Mr. Douglas. They had a lot of guys come out for the team. The team placed 3rd in Conference with D. Meyer and B. Faust as semi-finalists. They had a record of 11-7 for the season.

This year's wrestling team may not have had their best season, but they did show a great deal of hard work. The two outstanding players on the Varsity team were Seniors Mike Lucansky and Pat Schmiederer. Mike, having a record of 23-4, finished second in conference, and Pat finished sixth in conference with a record of 17-12-1. The Junior Varsity team consisted of many good wrestlers, including Andy Porto, Ron Anderskew, Bryan Divis, Bill Kunstman, and Dick O'Hara. Douglas believes that since this year's Junior Varsity team was so strong, they will make a very promising team for next year.

The boys feel this has been a building year for the team. The Mid-Suburban Conference was very strong this year, and our team was a little too young for the competition. The boys gymnastic team finished with a record of 3-5 in conference and 4-6 overall. Two successful individuals this year were our only seniors, John Cunningham and Paul Koeppen. Both John and Paul worked trampoline their first two years, and then were forced to switch events when the tramp was taken out of competition. John continued floor exercise from his sophomore year, and Paul took on floor exercise and vaulting. They were also our team captains. There was a lot of time and effort put forth on everyone's part this season. Varsity all-arounders were junior Wayne Rothbauer, and sophomores John Hurd and John Ciesielski.

Coach Elms and his team started off the year without a few key players. Mr. Elms had only two returning starters from last year. The reason why the Falcons didn't have a bad year was because of the depth of the varsity squad. Skip Leuzzi and Ron Laramie were at the guard positions and backing them up was Tim Maloney. Under the boards the tall men were Phil Menard, Dave Harper, Scotty Sheldon, and two sophomores, Jeff Schmidt and Mike Matella. Each of these players ranged from 6'3" to 6'7". The Falcons had a good year, surprisingly upsetting a couple of teams like Prospect and Rolling Meadows. Skip Leuzzi was the top scorer and Phil Menard was the man of the boards with the most rebounds. Coming off a football injury Scotty Sheldon played well later in the year and Dave Harper never really had a bad day. The Falcons also have a large number of excellent underclass cagers such as sophomore Kevin Murray, Junior Mike Collins and Jim Holan. These three will have strong performances next year.

The Sophomore team got off to a slow start and this affected the season. The team's record was about even. Coach Lussow said, "They're a good bunch of guys and they work well together." Three of the Sophomores were promoted to the varsity level. This shows the potential of the Sophomores. Mike Predergast and Phil Toepper were two of the top players. Randy McLoed played good defensively and Brad Cook was one of the most improved players for the season. Despite the slow start the team really pulled together and had a good season. The Frosh A's had a .500 season, Coach Thorne said they worked hard together, and they scraped and hustled to win. The Frosh team shows a lot of promise for seasons to come. Dave McGough, Paul Bobek, and Brian Hopkins were the top scorers and contributed a lot through the season. The Frosh B's also had a .500 season. They really played good defensive games. They weren't very accurate with their shooting but improved during the season. Steve Bastas was the leading scorer for the team.

The 1977-1978 Varsity Team was young, primarily juniors and very few seniors. The season was not their best. They had a good start in the season, but fell behind in midseason. Because of their efforts and good spirit they increased their wins toward the end. They were in districts, but lost the game to Schaumburg. They won six out of their last eight games.

Varsity hitting was led by Tim Maloney, who had an average of 290, Ron Laramie with 283, and Jeff Glazner with 281. The team voted Mike Gremer for the Most Valuable Player of the year. The top pitcher of the team was Bob Slawinski. His earn run average was 2.77.

In their conference games the Varsity achieved a record of 8-11. In non-conference their record was 1-3-1. Next year's season should be a good one. All juniors will be returning for senior year and the frosh and sophomore teams will be running close behind with talent and effort.

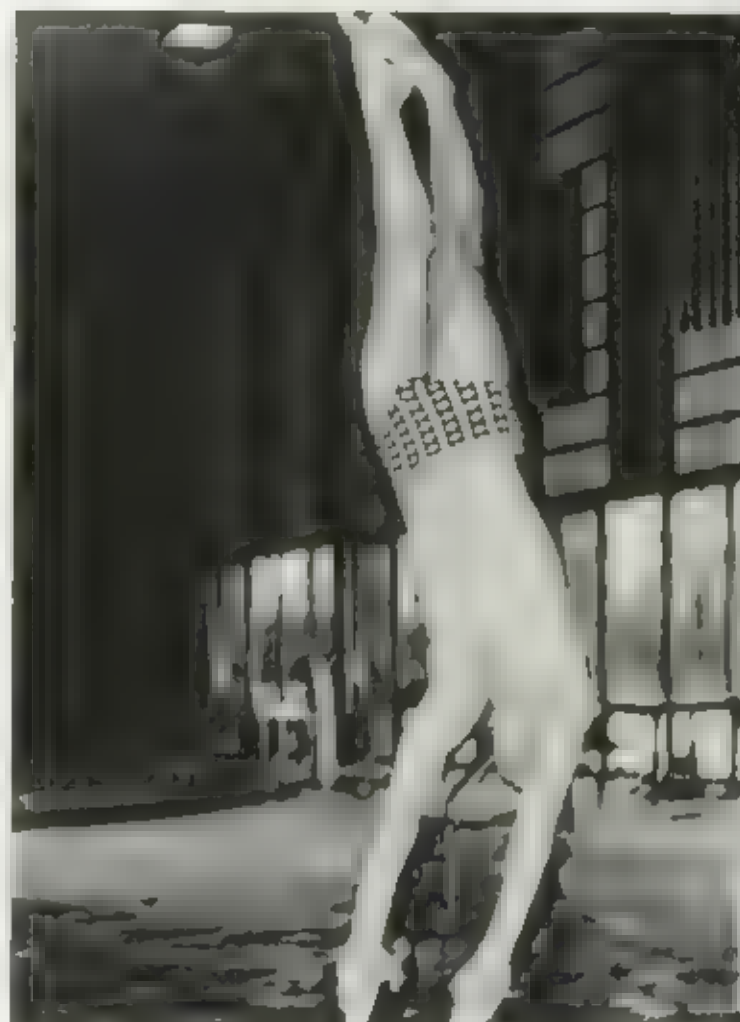

Ready for the throw to second is Ron Laramie.

Anyone who would get up at 5:00 in the morning to go swimming must be absolutely crazy, right? Wrong. At least the boys on the varsity swimming team don't think so. Their coach, Mr. Mike Stevens, has them in the water at 5:45 a.m. six mornings a week. They swim at Olympic pool in Arlington Heights. Coach Stevens expected the team to rank within the top 10 at state this year. Leading the team to their eventual goal is Falcon swimmer, Tom Redig. Tom is a senior this year, and has been a conference champ for three consecutive years. He was the 16th fastest in the nation last year and, according to Coach Stevens, has come back even stronger and faster. Junior Scott Beutler, a varsity swimmer for three years, was another strong contributor.

The diving team, coached by Mr. Lee Wunderlee, did a great job also. Casey Platt, a junior led the team. He qualified for state last year, and has the capacity to break several school records.

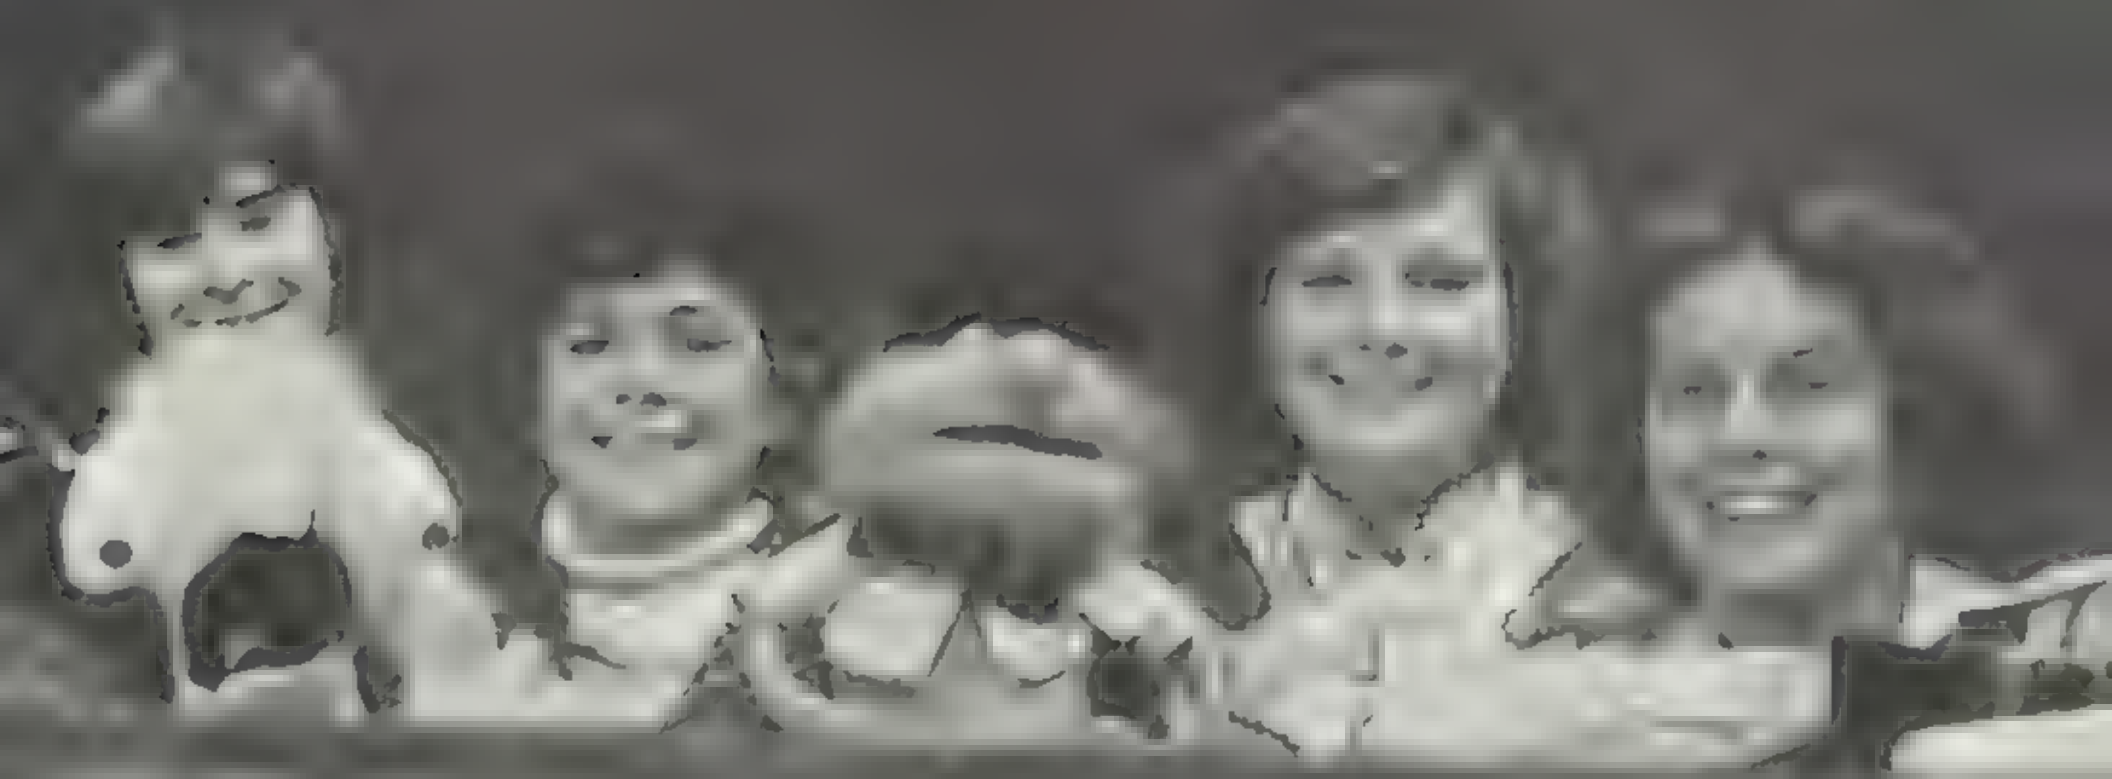

Performing a dive is varsity diver Greg Pitek.

Algauers Hosts

"Precious and Few"

After several long months of careful preparation directed by Class Board and Prom chairman, Joyce Krueger, the Junior class presented as Prom theme "Precious and Few." On June 2, 1978, the memorable evening began at 7:30 when couples started arriving at Algauers Fireside Inn and voting for the 1978 Prom Queen. At 9:00 the exciting moment arrived when Chris Garvos announced the 1978 Prom Queen to be Judy Pape. The Queen reigned over the festivities for the remaining hours of the night. With her escort, Glen Nelson, Judy led the couples in dance to the music provided by "On Tap" and "Music Machine." At 12:00 the evening ended. But for most the evening was over too soon.

Spirit

Towne Criers perform during Fall Fest week.

Fall Festival activities were sponsored by Student Council. Special events were overalls day, costume day, and the traditional black and gold day - just to name a few. Students showed school spirit by decorating the halls and participating in the various activities. Some Senior students dressed in togas to show their involvement. There were mini assemblies and the performers were Towne Criers, New Directions, Men's Glee, and Orchesis. The annual Powder Puff Football game ended when the Senior Smashers won 8-6 over the Junior girls. Bill Frink of Channel 7 was present at the game and some girls appeared on T.V. On Friday there was the coronation and Saturday night was the dance.

The Night

Sparkled with

Royal Enchantment

Fall Festival is an exciting week for students to become involved in the many different school activities. The coronation was very thrilling for the five lucky senior girls. "This year on October 6, 1978, the students of Forest View High School proclaimed Nancy Gould as their Homecoming Queen.." The theme for this year's Fall Festival dance was "Royal Enchantment." The gym was decorated like an old medieval castle and everything was very life-like. Many teachers and students commented that it was one of the best dances the school has ever had. The dance was sponsored by the National Honor Society and it marked the close of all the Fall Festival events. The couples danced to the music of "Paid In Full."

"Whispers of Winter" Warms the Season

As the strong wind whistled through the cold night air, couples gathered at this year's Christmas dance, "Whispers of Winter," which was sponsored by the senior class. Within a matter of hours, the gym had been transformed into a beautiful Winter Wonderland. The ceiling was decorated with snowflakes and stars, and each table was furnished with its own Christmas tree. As the night continued, couples enjoyed the music of the band. Soon it was time for the moment everyone had been waiting for. Coronation time had come. The crowd split as the procession of the nominees began. Steve Eddy and Carissa Szymanowski were crowned King and Queen. Thus, a beautiful evening ended, making everyone happy. The happy couples walked out into the whistling wind.

Shortly after being crowned king and queen, Steve and Carisa share the first dance.

The queen is crowned by Betsy Rasmussen.

Queen Carisa Szymanowski and King Steve Eddy take time to pose with their court.

A bouquet is presented to the newly elected queen.

Dancing to the music are Paul Diebel and his date, Karen Hunt.

Sharing thoughts of the evening ahead, Sarah Geisel and Ron Laramie look over the bid.

Members of the court are escorted to the coronation.

Denie Comes Alive on Stage

Forest View's spring play, Picnic, was directed by Mr. David Good with technical direction by Mr. Jeff Lovell. This William Inge play took place in a small Kansas town in the mid-1950's. It involves Madge Owens (Denise Bragiel) who meets Hal Carter (Jeff Schaffrath), the stranger who comes to town. Madge is engaged to Alan Seymour (Fred Damiano), the son of a wealthy banker. Mrs. Potts (Carol Schneider) hired Hal to do some odd jobs for her. Hal is looked down upon by Mrs. Owens (Debbie Daliege) and all the other women, except Mrs. Potts. Then it is revealed that Hal and Alan were roommates in college. Just as Hal is beginning to be accepted by everyone, he and Madge fall in love. This play was a touching romance enjoyed by all.

Watching the sun set are Rosemary Sidney (Caroline O'Boyle) and Howard Bevans (Eric Kudalis).

Old college buddies have some fun together.

Deep concern is expressed by Jeff Schaffrath.

As she sits on the porch, Madge daydreams.

Everyone watches in horrified surprise as Hal asks Madge to come with him and be his wife.

The stage crew of Picnic takes a break from pounding nails to pose for a picture.

Sisters, Madge and Millie Owens, talk about their dates for the coming evening.

The girls all gather on Flo's porch to bid farewell to the newlywed couple.

Alan and Hal begin to fight over the love of Madge

Mrs. Potts lays a comforting hand on Flo's shoulder

Gertie (Julie Pratt) receives a well deserved punch from Ado Annie.

Fantasizing the thought of paradise are Judy Pape and Alex DeRango.

Dreaming of their future are Laurey (Maryann Kellogg) and Curly (Glen Nelson)

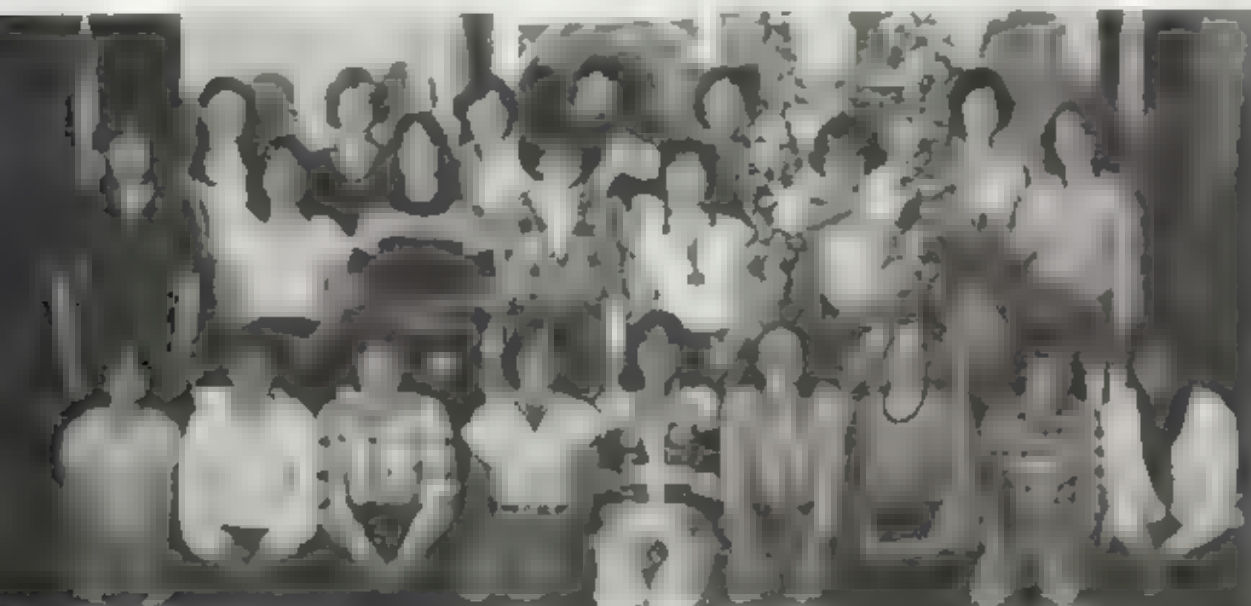

Laurey and her friends take a brief pause to pose in a grove in back of the Skidmore Ranch.

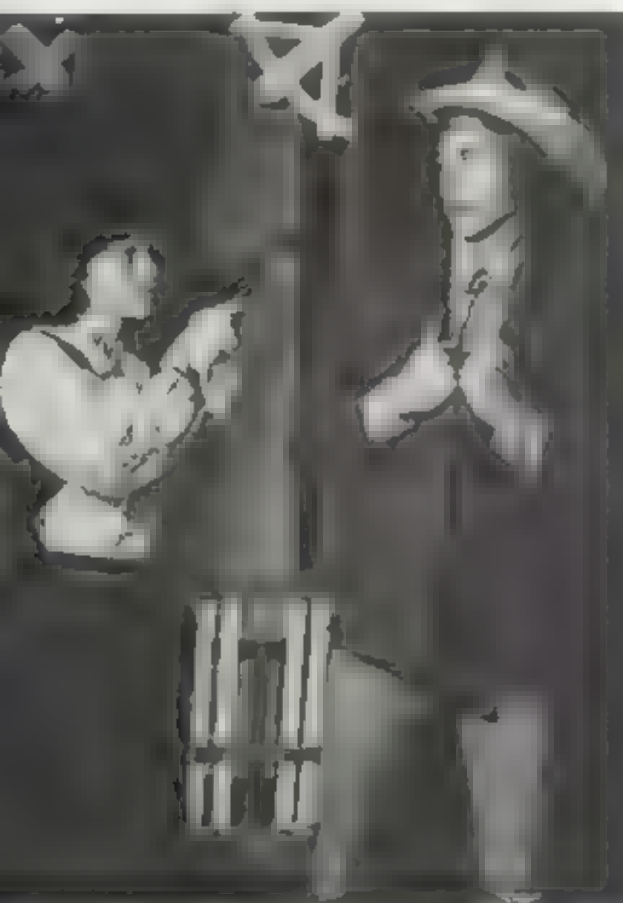

Alone in the smoke house, Jud (Jeff Schafrath) thinks.

Mr. Carnes (Steve Jansen) prevents Eli Hakim (Alex DeRango) from marrying his daughter (Judy Pape).

The devoted Oklahoma stage crew put many long hard hours into building sets and props.

An argument with Mr. Carnes is won by Aunt Eller.

Annie is dazzled by Will's (Al Olsen) kiss.

Curly (Glen Nelson) talks Jud out of suicide.

You're Doin'

Fine

Oklahoma!

Following the tradition of past musicals at Forest View, the 1978 version of Oklahoma splashed onto stage with great success. The casting was fantastic, with Glen Nelson and Maryann Kellogg playing the leads; Jeff Schafrath was a natural as Jud Fry, and Judy Pape won the hearts of all as dizzy Ado Annie. The devotion of the rest of the hard working cast was apparent throughout every performance. Of course there never could have been an Oklahoma without the efforts of the folks backstage. The costumes, sets, make-up, orchestra, and excellent directing and choreography put that extra sparkle into the show, and enabled every audience to proudly applaud the fine achievements of one and all.

Mousetrap Captures Audience

The stage crew and Director Mr. Cary Libkin played a part in the success of the show.

Once again, the students of Forest View put on a fine performance. This year's fall play, Mousetrap, had three showings, each a success. Under the direction of Mr. Cary Libkin, all actors and actresses, whether their first performance or not, proved to be pros on the stage. Superb performances were given by Rod Damer (Sgt. Trotter), Julie Pratt (Mollie Ralston), and Phil Simon (Giles Ralston). The lighting, construction, and costumes proudly displayed the time and talents of those backstage. Everyone was brought back to Old England and the Monkswell Mansion. And the final disclosure of the murderer is known only by those wise enough to see this fantastic play.

Variety Show Salutes Hollywood

"Hooray for Hollywood" was the theme of the 1978 Variety Show. The main idea of the show was to salute the star-studded town of Hollywood. The creation and direction of the show was done by Mr. David Good. Mrs. Donna Anderson was assistant director and Mr. Cary Libkin handled the technical end. The Student Production Staff consisted of Diane Kledzik-Chorus, Julie Pratt and Fred Damiano-Comedy Troupe, Angie Lucchesi and Jeff Miller-Dance, Jim Turner-Pit Band, and Tim Klassen-Technical Effects. This year's Variety Show included music, dance, comedy, and magic. Thanks to all the talent Forest View students had to offer, and the infinite patience of the directors, this year's Variety Show was a big success.

WE TURN SOME PAGES

The 1979 TALON Staff consisted of twenty-eight hardworking students. Everyone worked to meet the deadlines. This year changes from the past included the opening section and division pages. These full-spread bleeds have never been done before at Forest View. The Senior Section was also changed. The names were printed on the bottom of the picture instead of off to the side. Senior candid pictures were added to the Senior Summaries section. The Academic Departments section was an added change to this years book. Co-Editors, Debbie Wagner and Cathy Pitzafarro, along with Section Editors Noreen Cipriani, Beth Wyatt, Debbie Vilim, Jeff Kloster, Business Manager Chris Merritt and Photographer Bob Dixon worked with the rest of the staff to "turn some pages."

TALON Advisor, Miss Murphy arranges days for club pictures to be taken.

CAREY'S CREW IMPROVES VIEWER

The Viewer has been greatly improved this year. According to Editor-in-Chief, Don Eigenhauser, the Viewer is expected to score high in competition. Our newspaper has taken on a conservative but more progressive format. The quality of pictures has improved, and a calander page was printed the first week of every month. This year's Viewer provided the students with a greater awareness of school events. The hard work of the staff and Mr. Carey's help made the Viewer the entertaining and informative newspaper it is.

NHS HOSTS DANCE

The National Honor Society serves to recognize and honor outstanding students for their leadership and character. Among the NHS notable events was the Fall Festival Dance, "Royal Enchantment." The dance was chaperoned by Mrs. Marylyn Bogan, NHS sponsor. During Homecoming, the group sold the annual Fall Festival Pennant, designed this year by Terry DePinto. At Christmas the chapter sponsored a Mistletoe sale, sending the proceeds to the Forgotten Children's Fund. The most important function was the Buffet Pot Luck Dinner and Installation Ceremony. Here the 100 newly initiated received the traditional membership card and pin.

Writers Dine At Lancers

This year twenty-six students became members of Quill and Scroll, the International Honorary Society of High School Journalists. These students worked on the TALON or the VIEWER staffs. Each met all the requirements of the society. The initiation took place at The Lancer in Schaumburg. President Cathy Pitzafarro, Vice-President Noren Cipriani, and Secretary-Treasurer Chris Merritt conducted initiation ceremony. Entertainment included a fine performance from the Towne Criers. Two college graduates, Peggy Dinkelkamp and Helen Raece, gave fine speeches on journalism to the newly initiated members and their parents.

COUNCIL DIRECTS STUDENT BODY

This year Student Council was interested in promoting community involvement through Blood Drives and charity drives during holiday seasons. Fall Festival activities such as sack races and pie eating contests were arranged by council members. Jim Conrad and the Public Relations Committee arranged "Recognition Toasts" to honor outstanding organizations throughout the year. Various assemblies also became an important part of Student Council functions. President Connie Froude has kept Student Council active during the 1978-79 School year.

OFFICERS GUIDE CLASSES

Forest View's class officers led the students through another full year of activities. All classes participated in the traditional parade and decorated their assigned hallways during Fall Festival Week. Freshmen gained experience and acquired funds for next year. February's annual Turn-About Dance was sponsored by the sophomore class. During the summer, the juniors organized a trip to Great America. Later in the year they planned and hosted the Junior-Senior Prom. Seniors made Christmas memorable with the holiday ball, and presented the school with a gift.

CAMP ACCENTS BAND

This year the band stepped off with some "in tune" ideas.

The Marching band went to the Conference Point Band Camp, located off of Lake Geneva. It was the first time the band worked at a camp to learn drills and practice music. The band was made slightly smaller allowing the members to perform their best program ever.

For the concert season a Cadet band was formed for the incoming freshmen. It will improve their playing abilities for the advanced bands. Because of Cadet band, the Symphonic and Concert bands are more select groups.

Playing his xylophone during the half time show is junior, Jeff Thursby.

Playing a trumpet solo is senior, Dan Scola.

Clarinet players are Laurie Maybach and Benji Kim.

JAZZ BAND HAS RHYTHM

The Jazz Band this year had a great performance record. They were invited back to three contests. In one of these, the Northshore Jazz Festival at Glenbrook South, they won first place and grand championship. There is a new Jazz Band Director this year, Mr. Kevin Kastens. Mr. Kastens graduated from U. of I. with a Bachelor of Science and a Master of Science degree in music. Mr. Kastens has also put together a jazz Combo which consists of six players. He plans on taking the Combo and also the Jazz Lab Band to contest this year in order to prepare them for varsity contests. We wish Mr. Kastens great luck next year.

Freshmen Darryl Colt seems interested.

CHOIRS CUT NEW ALBUM

Choir Director, Mr. Jerome Swanson, planned a busy schedule filled with many performances for choir members this year. In November, the choir members recorded their first album at Our Lady of the Wayside Church. The album sold more copies than expected. The choir had their annual orange and grapefruit sale to raise money for their choir tour to Louisville, Kentucky. This tour lasted for four days in May. This spring on three occasions the choir traveled to Chicago to sing with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra. The programs of Men's Glee and Treble Choir were presented when they sang for mini-assemblies, and for the Christmas, Winter, and Spring Concerts.

Voices Sing For HOLIDAYS

When there is reason for celebration, there should be music. This years Towne Criers, New Directions, and Freshmen Choir worked hard to spread plenty of holiday cheer. During Fall Festival week, the Towne Criers and New Directions performed in mini-assemblies in the theatre. Their next project was their biggest and busiest time — Christmas. The two groups spent the last weeks before X-mas singing at Jr. Highs, country clubs, hospitals, and at a variety of other places. The rest of the year consisted of plenty of practice on the parts of all three groups in order to make each and every appearance spectacular.

POWPOW3 IMPROVE FORM

This year the Falcettes were very busy. They practiced every day fifth hour and two nights a week to get ready for football and basketball half time shows. Before the season started, each girl spent a week at Band Camp, concentrating on marching and polishing techniques. This practice helped them to win first place at Northern Illinois University along with the Marching Band. Along with all the hard work, the Falcettes had many good times together and developed strong friendships. This year they sold candy canes, cheese and sausage, and had a car wash, to help pay for their new uniforms.

BATONS TURN TO RIFLES

This year the Golden Girls decided to try something new. Instead of twirling batons, as they have done in previous years, they turned into a seven girl rifle squad for the half-time shows during the football season and for Marching Band contests. This included one at Northern Illinois at which they helped to bring a first place award. However, the girls will continue twirling their batons for basketball half-time shows. The Golden Girls keep busy by selling sweetheart suckers and cheese and sausage. This hard work helps the girls pay their expenses throughout the year.

STUDENTS EARN NFL HONORS

Student Congress is a debate activity and is composed of about 15 students. The congress is a simulation of the congress of the U.S. Government. Students write their own legislation and, at the congress, the pro's and con's are debated. Areas of public welfare, economic policy, and foreign affairs are discussed and the issues are then voted upon. Awards are given for best speaker, best legislation, and best presiding officer. Students are judged according to organization, persuasiveness, analysis, delivery, and their support for their arguments. This year Judy Palmer and Aninda Roy won first place for best legislation at Rolling Meadow High School. It was a very successful year for both the Individual Events Team and Reader's Theater. Contest Play won 6th place in state for their performance of "Where Have all the Lightning Bugs Gone?" Two students, Scott Stevens and Sue Marcotte, advanced to sectionals and three students, Scott Stevens, Julie Pratt and Rod Damer, excelled and went to the Tournament of Champion's. Reader's Theater competed as a team event and won 5th in state for "Adaptation." Students involved in any drama show automatically become members of the Drama Club. N.F.L. is an honor society for members of Speech Team and Student Congress. Membership is based on points won during their performances.

AIDES KEEP ORDER

Both Attendance Office Guides and Counseling Aides play an important part in the order at Forest View. Students come in during their open hours to help Mrs. Hoehle answer phones, write out admits, distribute hall passes, and run passes. Other students go to the Counseling Office and help Mrs. Pollard run passes, work the switchboard, file, and contact counselors. The Attendance Office received a new computer this year. Now, information that used to take three days to find, takes only a matter of seconds. These students are an asset to the school and both Mrs. Hoehle and Mrs. Pollard agree they couldn't get their jobs done without these student helpers.

CLUBS PROMOTE INTEREST

Do you have any special interest or hobby? There are clubs for almost anything at Forest View. The Math Club plans and does things related to math. Some activities include oral math contests and written contests. History Simulation is led by Mr. Blazeovich and is designed for students interested in history, and who want to explore it more deeply. The Art Club this year was very small, but Mr. Wunderle wasn't about to let it drop from the school club roster. These art students primarily do the projects that interest them. This year some of these club members have done animation, head sculptures, and slip casting. They were involved in the Arts Unlimited program.

MEMBERS CHECK MATE

Mr. Buchheit is the sponsor for Chess Club. These students meet on Tuesday and Thursday after school. They play many different schools home and away. Their goal for this year is to finish undefeated.

The sponsors for Pep Club are Miss Feeney and Mrs. Illingsworth. The team meets twice a week. The Captain this year is Lisa Schild and Co-Captain is Jill Wennerstrom. These Forest View girls run the meets by announcing and keeping score for all the Boys Gymnastics Meets.

Concentrating on his next move is Jim Wade.

Pep Club: Top Row: Kathy Hibbs, Laurie Schneider, Patty Davison, Cherry DelDatto, Lisa Schild

DANCERS' FEET GO TO BEAT

Orchesis is a group of girls who love to dance, and want to learn more about it. This year Orchesis consisted of 35 girls, nine of which were returning seniors. They are taught by Mrs. Kathy Shulkins, and are instructed in ballet, modern, jazz, and theatre dances. A great majority of the year is spent preparing for their big show in spring. This show is a compilation of a vast number of dances in many styles, all choreographed by the students. These Orchesis girls put many long hours into planning and practicing their dances so that each and every performance can be spectacular.

Dancing with style is Tracyee Wolpoff.

MEDIA APPEALS TO STAFF

The A.V. Club was successful in keeping the school's various movie projectors, opaque projectors and filmstrip projectors in top condition. The Audio Visual Club delivers, cleans, and maintains all the equipment. They also are helpful assistants to the faculty members.

Forest View's radio station, WFMH, has been struggling to maintain a frequency, but had trouble finding a sponsor. WFMH is fighting for support. With the help of students and a teacher to volunteer, hopefully the students will have their own radio station once again. At present, WFMH is functioning but not broadcasting over the airways.

Changing the record is a member of WFMH.

DJ Dan Murphy listens to the music.

Students Climb Up, Ski Down

Ski Club and Climbing Club both had a long season this year thanks to the record snowfall. Ski Club had weekly trips to Wilmot and had some trips to the Playboy Club and Alpine Valley in Wisconsin. The Climbing Club had only one outing to Starve Rock and one trip to the Smokie Mountains in the Carolinas over spring break. There the students combined backpacking and actual scaling of the mountains. The Climbing Club also held meetings about outdoor cooking and camping. Ski Club has also planned a weekend ski trip to Rib Mountain in Wausau, Wisconsin.

Cross-country skiing was offered in gym for Juniors and Seniors again this year. This activity proved very popular.

Fine Arts Increases in Class Size

The Fine Arts Division is expanding. The Art Department is being remodeled to be larger, better, and more equipped. Vince Smith and his work of art won first prize in local, third in regional and ranked in state competition. Lynn Scopa had a printwork that went to Pittsburg, Pennsylvania and received excellent marks. More students scheduled four years of English this year than ever before. Approximately six hundred students took English Review. English Review is a college level course with a high school credit. Students also took more writing and literature classes. One hundred and twenty-five students scheduled Expository Writing. On November 5, the choirs recorded their first Christmas album which was received most warmly. Another exciting date of the year for choir was April 18, when they sang with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra. The marching band won first place in the N.I.U. contest. Jazz band won first at the North Shore Festival for Grand Champs. The Art, English, and Music aspects of this division have all had an interesting and exciting year. All of the class sizes increased.

Math Dept. Reviews Basics

This year the Math Department, headed by Mr. Umberger, started a new approach to math. At the beginning of the year, the District math teachers had a meeting and made some plans. They felt that it was important for students to really know the basic facts of math in order to solve problems accurately. Every Thursday this year, students of all math levels worked on the basic addition, subtraction, multiplication and division facts. Hopefully, this repetitious work enabled students to become more familiar with math facts and, consequently, do better in their classes.

Working on the computer are Steve Baumgartner and Scott Randolph.

Conducting an experiment in science class is Mitch Drain.

Botany Uses Greenhouse

There were no major changes in the science department. Biology was required for freshmen and the physical sciences were mandatory for the sophomores. As usual, the juniors and seniors were able to choose electives for their science classes. Some of the electives were Human Physiology, Oceanography, Zoology and Botany. Students planning to attend college took Physics, Chemistry, or Medical Chemistry. The Botany classes did something different this year. They went to the District 214 Greenhouse for mini-lessons. The program lasted for six weeks on a once a week basis.

During on experiment Nancy Golec concentrates.

Working on a lab is Russ Jobski.

Phys. Ed. Widens Electives

The Physical Education Department had a diversified program of activities. The upper classmen were offered several new elective classes. The additions were team handball, roller-skating and racquet ball. Cross country skiing was offered again for the second year. Racquet ball, second semester, enabled the students to fulfill their nine hour requirement on their own time, after school or on weekends, without attending gym classes. The freshman and sophomore gym teachers tried to change their classes by adding more activities and by having more of the classes co-educational.

Deciding which team gets the point is Mrs. Therkildsen

Counselors Aid in Careers

This year in the oral communications classes, the sophomores had the opportunity to learn about many different careers. In a well-structured, ten-day unit, the counselors were able to work with the students. Counselors were also able to do the things they wanted in helping the students with careers. First, the sophomores took an inventory to find out what careers interested them. Next, students used the GIS computer and the many catalogs in the well-informed career center. The students then gave speeches on their individual career choices. Next year, all the students will register by computer instead of self-scheduling.

Prac. Arts. A.V. work with Equipment

Mr. Winsauer is the new Practical Arts Division head. He manages all the business classes and is responsible for new classes that might be added to the Practical Arts division. Although no new classes were offered this year, next year a home-economics class entitled Independent Living is being offered to those students interested in preparing themselves for independent life. Other courses being offered to Forest View students include: Architectural Drawing III and Cabinet Making II. These two additions are offered to the students wanting to continue their learning in these two areas. There were four new teachers added to the staff this year: Mark Charbonneau - Metals, Jim Vanko - Autos, Judy Harwood - Home Economics, and Mary Ryan - Business Education. We hope these four new teachers have enjoyed their first year here at Forest View and that their future teaching years are very successful.

Library Will Hold Memories

Right now, the Student Council is in the process of creating a Hall of Memorabilia in the Library Conference Room. In it, past and present memories will be safely stored for future use. It will hold everything from yearbooks, to scrapbooks, to high achievement records, and anything else that is worthy of our remembrance. The room will be kept under a lock and key to assure safe keeping.

This is just one of the things that the Student Council is doing for us to make the Library here at Forest View better and more interesting to the students.

Once again, the library becomes necessary for Lisa Schultz to find the answer to her Spanish.

Psychology I Interests Students

Forest View has the largest selection of Social Science courses offered in the district. Although it is only in its second year, U.S. History Advanced placement is enjoying increased popularity. Psychology I has been the fastest growing course for the past ten years. Many different and interesting courses are being offered in our Social Science department.

Our Foreign Language program is operated on an individualized basis. Each student is allowed to work at his own pace with periodic checkouts from the teacher. This system seems to be very beneficial to the students.

While taking class notes, the discussion in U S History interests junior Denise DeSimone.

MY FAVORITE SWINDLER

It's really nothing to brag about-being swindled by a professional. Swindler may be an exaggerated word; in fact, this whole story may be a bit exaggerated. But this incident stands out as one of the more bizarre moments of my life.

The story starts out on a Saturday afternoon. The unsuspecting victim (me) is working the seven-to-four shift at Yankee Doodle and is already dead on her feet. The time is 3:08-fifty-two minutes until punch-out time. The place is fairly busy; there are four customers to be waited on. I am working alone up front; several workers in back are making the sandwiches. At this time, a tall, slim man gives me his order - one small Coke, thirty-seven cents. I quickly give him his change from a twenty-dollar bill as I move on to the next customer. As I hand him his change and wish him a nice day, he pulls out a wad of bills. I asked myself why he gave me a twenty when I could see he had plenty of ones. Then he started playing a little game of shenanigans with me. I didn't mind giving him more change; I gave him a ten for five ones and a five (only after pointing out that he gave me four ones, not five). Then he asked for more change; this smelled fishy, but the whole transaction seemed fair. Again he gave me four ones, not five; with embarrassment, I told him he had shorted me one. The stupid . . . He exchanged money about six times; I hastily accommodated him because a line was forming. Just as he left the next girl in line told me he was a shortchanger; she had seen him at MacDonald's in Barrington when she got cheated out of a hundred dollars.

I was really quite perturbed. I knew something was funny, but what could I do? You have to please the customer, even if he only buys a small Coke. I noted his license plate, color and make of the car (as all good citizens should) and told the manager what had happened. He immediately counted the drawer while I took down the names of the girl and her boyfriend-witnesses. He told them they would be contacted if something should come of this. Five minutes later, the manager came running up front and told me we were ten dollars short. Now, ten dollars isn't bad, if you consider this guy is a professional, and that I was extremely rushed. But, boy, was I mad at myself! What an insult to my intelligence! I could have sworn the exchange was legal; but apparently this crook "hit me" for a bit. Quick-a call to the Elk Grove Police. I, Susan Long, had to give a description to the police. Because my observation powers were so keen (due, in great part to my English teacher's recent assignment of watching bugs), I was able to describe him for the A.P.B. (Of course, in police talk, that's an all-points-bulletin. Boy, was I learning a bit!): 165 pounds (perhaps); six feet two; eyes of blue; brown neck-length hair; late thirties-early forties (he was actually twenty five); and the crookedest evil face I had ever seen — man, did I hate him for noting the license plate and for even observing his brown-haired, female accomplice in the front seat. (I even saw the sunglasses on top of her head- a big clue.)

Quickly, a policeman arrived on the spot. Typical Irish-Polish cop (no nationality insult). Friendly but kind of naive. (If you've ever seen Barney Miller, he'd look like Wojohowicz.) I never did mention to him that he was leading me to fabricate the story a bit. (That would get me years in prison.) He wanted me to recount the total exchange, action by action. This was quite impossible; I couldn't admit to out-and-out making a mistake. Me?

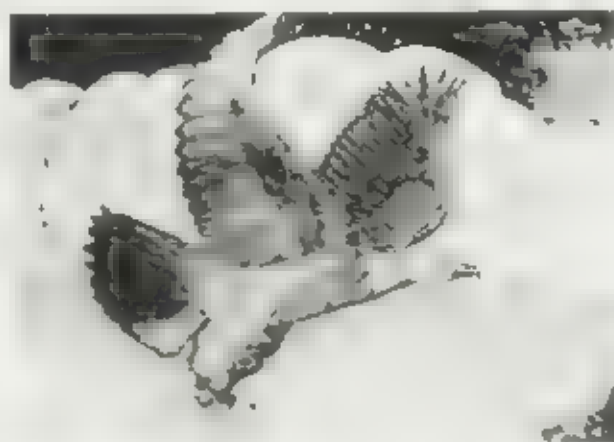

Though totally sure, I reconstructed the crime. In the middle of the story, the policeman's walkie-talkie interrupted and reported that the suspect had been found (due to my skillfully reconstructed description of him and the license plate) trying to do the same thing at a local grocery store. I snickered a bit and knew I had the guy plastered against the wall. This meant I had to go "down to the station" (Am I not worldly?) and identify this thief. I nervously followed the officer in my car. I had been on edge since the incident and probably would have given away a million dollars to any unsuspecting customer who would have wanted change for the cigarette machine. So, driving, I kept the speed limit and preferred not to keep up with the cop, who was speeding. I didn't even run the yellow light. Finally, making it to the police station, I locked my doors and taking a deep breath, headed inside. He paused before the hall door, and the officer told me to walk discreetly (in a Yankee Doodle uniform?) past the lady with the sunglasses on her head. Yep, that was the accomplice. She was "singing" on her boyfriend, my favorite swindler, as we walked past. She was slowly remembering all the places they had hit that day, but only because the police was threatening her with jail for the methodone on her. Both junkies were now getting nervous. I had to identify my friend, the con man. First, I saw his mug shot. He sure looked different- he was smiling and wearing sunglasses (looked like his real age of twenty-five). Finally, I got to identify the creep through the two-way mirror. Yes, I recognized his eyebrows. A great feeling of bitterness arose. I wish I could see him spend the rest of his life in the slammer for making me look like such a fool, even though I knew the worst he could get was a misdemeanor.

The other witnesses arrived-the girl (her snoopy mother came along for the ride) and her boyfriend. The girl, joking, said she only recognized the guy because she thought he was cute when she first saw him. Me . . . I just hated him for all that he stood for. After the report was filled out, the more intelligent inspectors, trying to figure out where I got shorted the money, interrogated me. They, too, had been colorful characters, and looked just like Starsky. With the paperwork ended, the initial job was ended.

Since Yankee Doodle was pressing charges (for the principle, not the money), we were warned about court and I was told I would be contacted for the trial. That didn't scare me because I would lay down my life to convict this villain. Anyway, what's life? So, one day, if I'm missing from school, I'm either at the trial or have been bumped off by one of my favorite swindler's hit men.

SIGHT FOR SORE BRAINS

Aspirin commercials themselves tend to create the nation's headaches. The public agonizes at Madison Avenue's medical milestones. As if the commercials were not rude enough themselves, the viewer must endure hammers and chisels hacking at cut-a-way plastic skulls. Highlights of these perfectly-timed interruptions also include, bold men mapping out their skinny scalps with magic markers, throbbing crash-test dummy heads with sidemounted digital scoreboards, and pain-relief pills being flipped through intestinal pinball machines. Naturally, by the time the program resumes, the viewer has quite a bad headache himself. However, one can not overlook the crucial message the commercials bring: Three aspirin pills have been smashed up into one capsule, thus saving the dying consumer the excruciating pain of raising two more tablets to his bullet-biting mouth. America salutes Madison Avenue for telling us the remedy for "aspirin commercial headaches".

DEATH OF AN OLD WOMAN

Gray and wrinkled at 75,
a tired old woman with a long life passed.
She walks to the zoo every day at nine o'clock.
She feeds the pigeons in the park
each day at 10.
And then back she goes-back to the old beat-up apartment dwelling she calls home.
Moldy curtains line the windows and weep painfully
at the gray all around.
An old sofa with holes consoles the old woman when she sleeps.
And then one morning she doesn't waken,
and no one notices.
No one except the animals at the zoo, who miss her throwing bits of food
to them.
And the pigeons are lost without her.

They can't imagine where she has gone.
But aside from that,
no one cares . . .
No one really cares . . .

IVORY DREAMS

I remember when I was young, a long, long time ago. I was newly built out of good, solid pine and freshly varnished. My keys were polished ivory. I was bought and put in a saloon in a little goldrush town in Nevada.

That was where I met Sam. Sam and I - well, we got along real fine. He knew all the best ragtime tunes.

Our best nights were Saturdays. Sam would get there early and start warming up. Pretty soon the miners would start to arrive, tired, dusty, and dry. They'd buy a few drinks. Then the show would start. They were the big attraction - the dancehall girls. Sam's fingers would fly over my keys so lightly I could hardly feel them.

I can see the room now. Sam and I in a corner near the stage, the men crowded around tables, cigar smoke swirling around their heads. And up on the stage were the girls.

Ah, the girls. They were beautiful, tossing their hair, kicking up their legs, their petticoats swirling and flying. They were the only women in town and the men would shout, whistle, and clap as they danced.

Then Maria would step down from the stage and sing a slow, sad song as she leaned against me. My voice was soft in the background. The room was silent except for the jingle-jangle of the old ragtime. Music would start up again and the room would once again be filled with talk and laughter.

Well, the years went by, and now men were leaving town faster than new ones arrived. Soon Saturday nights weren't crowded anymore. The owner of the saloon and the girls left town. Sam went with them. They were the last ones to leave.

The town has been empty ever since. The saloon is dark and still except for the dust swimming in the shaft of sunlight that pours through the window. My varnish is now cracked and peeling. Cobwebs hang around my legs. My keys are yellow with age, and I feel older than the mountains outside the window.

Yet, sometimes at night, the room is again filled with miners and smoke. The girls are up on the stage again. And Sam - Sam is sitting on his stool in front of me. Once again I can feel his fingers dancing across my keys as he plays my favorite ragtime tune.

Play it again, Sam.

MY DREAM

I guess it's always been my dream. In summer when the 17-year cicadas crawl up out of the ground and climb up trees to hatch out of their shells, I would love to grab one the very moment he's out of his shell and tie a small leash of thread around his little green neck.

And then when he is strong and ready to fly away,
I would have him on a leash that would extend high in the sky.
As he flies forward into the wind,
people would stroll by and ask me,
"What on earth are you doing holding a thread that goes straight up into the air?"
And I would calmly say
"I'm taking my pet cicada for a fly."

Bob Burnett

I built a snowman yesterday
In your honor,
In a sudden burst of energy
Ignited by boredom.
I even gave it my gloves,
Like you used to let me wear yours
When my hands were cold.
And I put a big smile on Mr.
Snowman's face,
Just like the one you gave me.
And I secretly engraved a big heart.
But then I had to quit and go inside because the snowman just stood there
Unable to move,
Its blank face searching mine
Like you did when I told you.
And a drop of ice was falling down its face
Like the tears I saw in your eyes.
Today I woke up and the snowman had melted,
Unlike the memories of you
That will never fade.

FINAL ESCAPE

Government heads were prepared to take the final step designed to terminate the corruption, murderous tendencies, and horrifying lethargy which had slowly crept over, first a country, then a continent, and finally the world.

My research started a year ago in our small but well-stocked country library. Inasmuch as it was out of the way and seemingly obscure, the government had not yet gotten around to "conditioning" the reading materials. That is to say, they had not censored the old works of literary art and infiltrated their own propaganda. The building was almost always deserted except for myself and the hawklike spinster librarian.

I had been poring over the archives and reviewing old government documents to complete a personal study on political science in the

Barb Hart-Colored Pencil

United States. This may sound like an unusually active pastime for one living in my day and age - 2376 - but I am an unusual person. I like work and research. No mechanized studying for me! In retrospect, I was quite naive.

Mine was the day of gross ignorance and laziness, and utter obedience to government dictums, because the populace couldn't care less.

On a morning that will forever stay in my mind, I found a dusty, wrinkled copy of a document whose very existence had been eradicated from all the history books. After I started reading it, my hands trembled and my vision blurred. This was it! This was the evidence I had been searching for! THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA!!!! Just think! The common people could have held elections, could have voted! Why, they could have even run for office!

Gathering up the evidence and grabbing my coat, I rushed from the library into my aerobile. From there I whizzed into the capital city completely disregarding the guards' half-hearted attempts to stop me.

When I reached the White House, things were strangely quiet. A deafening silence had spread over the grounds, and though not a soul could be seen, I felt a thousand eyes upon me.

With a feeling of nervous apprehension, I approached the overpowering presence of the building. With my heart fluttering in my breast, I knocked on the imposing front door which stared grimly at me from within its portals.

A voice inside me started screaming,
"Go back! Escape while you still have the chance!" Then a bolt was drawn out of the lock with a sharp click, and the door swung open.

Never in my life had I been more surprised than when the man in the doorway said, "Come in; we've been expecting you."

My mouth hung open for a moment, and I stumbled inside while the butler carefully closed and locked the door behind me.

"Go up the stairs on your right and pass three halls. When you reach the fourth, turn right, then left, then right again and enter the door at the end of the hall."

I spun around, questions tormenting my mind; however, my guide had mysteriously disappeared. I summoned what remained of my courage and followed his directions.

My footsteps echoed as I walked slowly down the hallway and opened the single white door at the end.

I stepped into the room and found myself in a spacious apartment with a curious oval shape. There were rich tapestries hanging on the wall. One was hanging from a pole, having red and white stripes, and a small blue square in the corner with white stars.

There was also a big desk made of some material which had become extinct long ago; I think it was called mahogany. Behind the desk sitting in an easy chair and smoking an expensive cigar sat our President.

"Have a seat!" he invited, and again I heard, "We've been expecting you."

"But how-"

"Sit down!" He blew a smoke ring into the air and swung his feet onto the desk. "Your movements have been under constant surveillance for over a year. The librarian in the building where you have been studying is actually a government agent. The document which you now grasp so tightly was planted in the files to bring you here."

"You mean this document is a fake?"

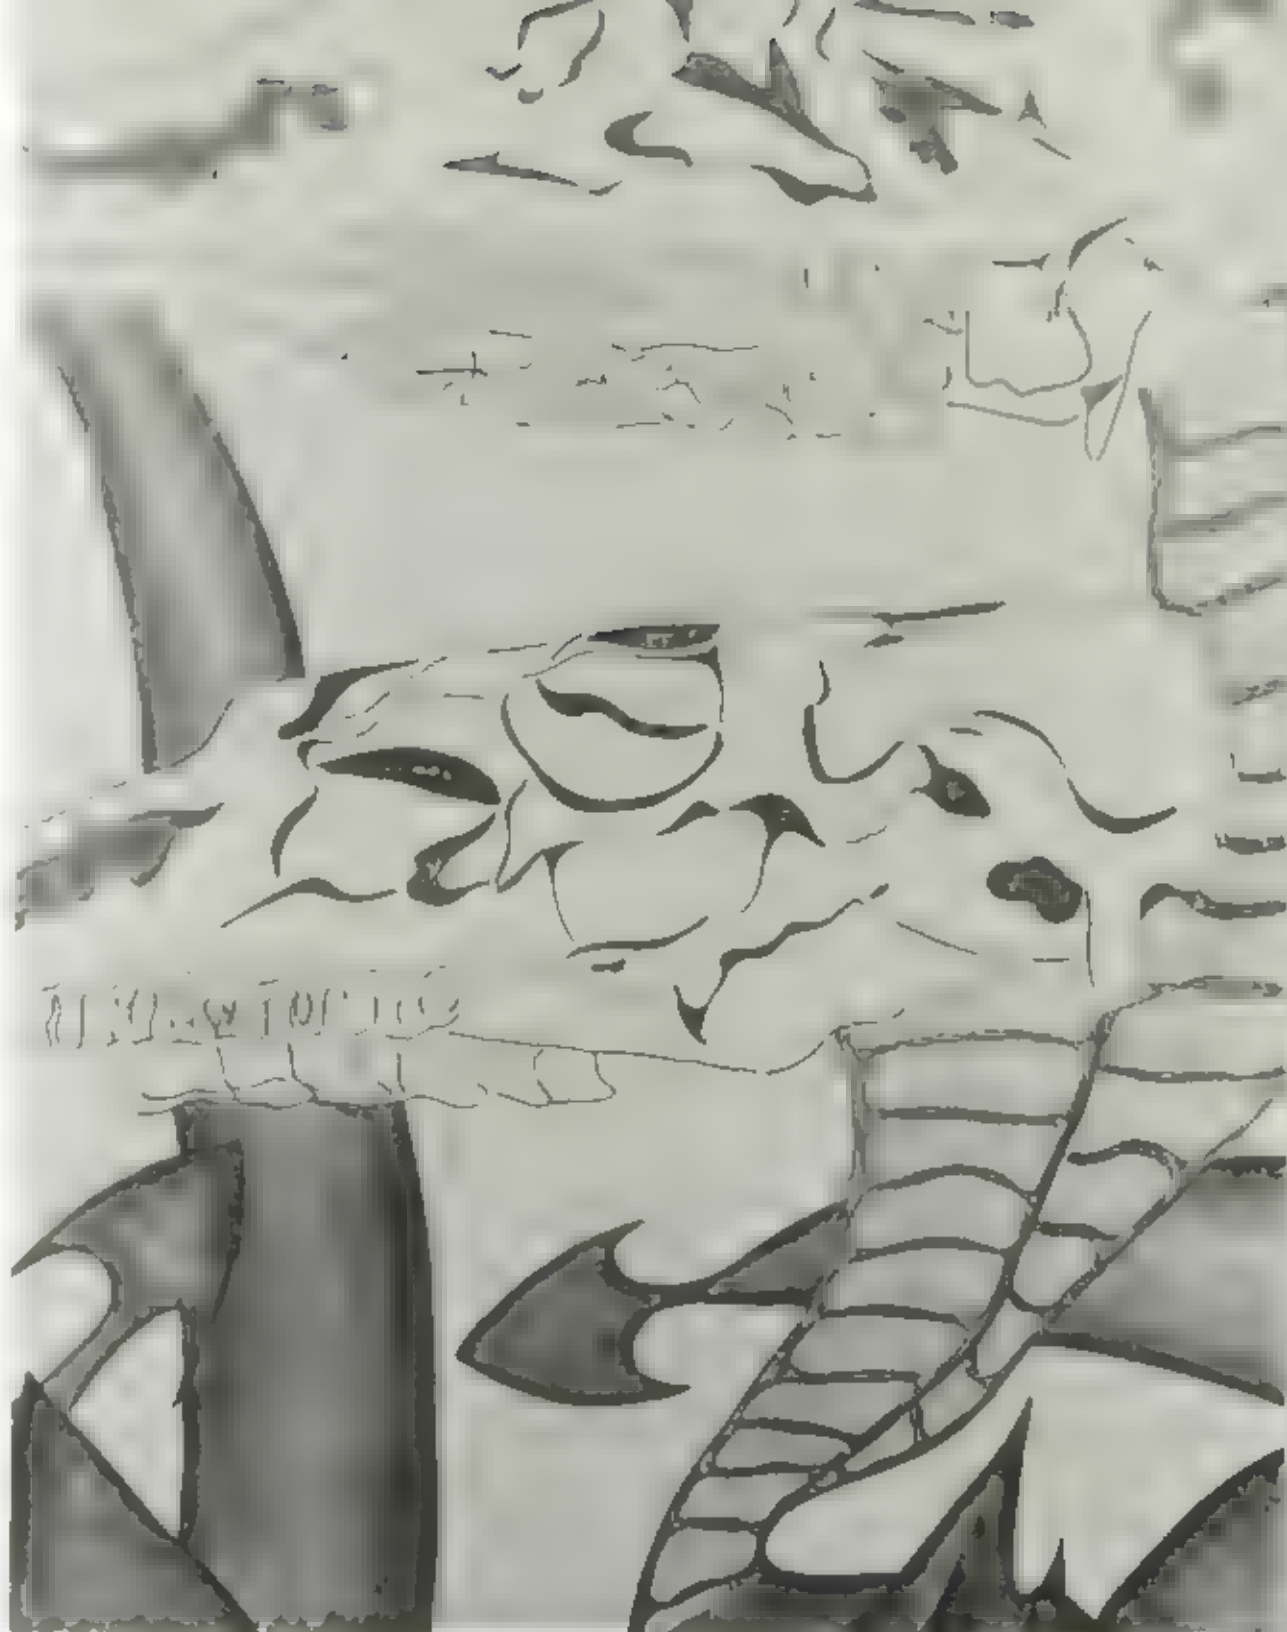

"No, it's quite real. However, the country became so infected with robbery, murder, and utter indifference that they completely forgot about it. Therefore, it was quite easy to make it seem as if it had never existed because hardly anyone noticed its disappearance. Those who did didn't care."

"Then this government is nothing but a common dictatorship! You've taken away all of the people's rights!"

"They took them away themselves!"

"How can you say that when you're the ones who got rid of our Constitution? Also, what does all this have to do with me?"

"Sit down and let me explain!" he thundered.

Debbie Wagner - Pencil

Marie Vaughn - Pencil

Rick Zombo - Pencil

In the 1970's people were already growing indifferent toward their government. Out of all those eligible, only 43% voted, and it gradually sunk until in 2240 only 1% of the people voted. This country has been run by a dictatorship since 2250, and nobody has even noticed! Crime and murder rates were steadily going up. The only thing that keeps this world from being overpopulated is the fact that 50 people die violent deaths every minute- and that's only in this country! Many times there are witnesses to these crimes, but no one raises a finger to help the victim. A classic example is the time when there was a girl being beaten to death in the middle of Time's Square, and 200 others stood merely looking on!"

"I still don't see what this--"

"I'm getting to that. You are impatient!"

He took his feet off the desk and leaned forward. At once I noticed both the great intelligence written on his face and the mad look in his eyes. For a moment I caught a glimpse of a fiery inferno burning up his soul, but then it passed.

"A select group of scientists have been carefully constructing a space module sufficient to support the lives of thirty people in suspended animation. These thirty people will be sent to a distant planet, much like Earth, in a different galaxy. We need young, healthy adults who, for some reason, have not been corrupted by society — an unusual person for today which is why we chose you."

If I was at all astonished by this first announcement, I was stupified by his next.

"Yes, thirty people have been selected from this human maelstrom, and after all of you are a safe distance away, this planet will be detonated, totally erasing it from this universe. Good luck in your new life, my son; may the world which you create succeed where this one has failed."

My mouth hung open in amazement for several minutes whilst I could only stare at him. Then as I started stuttering out my protests, he cut me short.

"It's the only way. You have no choice in the matter. I would go with to guide you, but it is my destiny to perish with this earth."

The mad light shone out of his eyes with a fierce intensity as he said, "I shall be the saviour of all men's souls, saving them from themselves by destroying them!"

He whooped with maniacal laughter as he pressed a button and the floor dropped out beneath me.

Even as I whizzed through space still semi-conscious, I felt the terrific force of the explosion. A single tear dropped before I completely went under the influence of the drugs which would guarantee a perfectly safe passage towards my new home.

A Promising Future

Pictures from Sports Illustrated were plastered all over the graying walls. Drapes consisted of an old pair of heavy, royal blue curtains. Through one window, the street could be seen. Youngsters romped and frolicked about, barefoot.

The sun rose through the other window. When the curtain was left open, as it was now, sunlight, casting a golden glow on everything in its path, streamed in through the double panes. Around 9:30 a.m., the brilliance arrived at the trophies that lined the bureau. The trophies and plaques on the dresser told the story of an athlete.

In front of the silver was the paper. Cards stood uniformly along the huge dresser. Some, sent from ignorant friends, read, "Get well." Others delivered their message with one simple word. "Sorry." Fortunately, the more sensitive people knew that one word was all that was necessary. The dresser, like the rest of the room, seemed to have been preserved, like a museum.

Down the hall voices rang. Moments later, the squeak of wheels was heard as Paul entered the room. Thoughtfully, he paused at the doorway. After several pensive moments of contemplating the magazine covers on the wall, Paul wheeled over to the bureau. He read each plaque aloud, as if he hadn't known them all by heart.

Pitifully, he kept on reading, continuing with the unsympathetic cards and progressing to the more understanding ones.

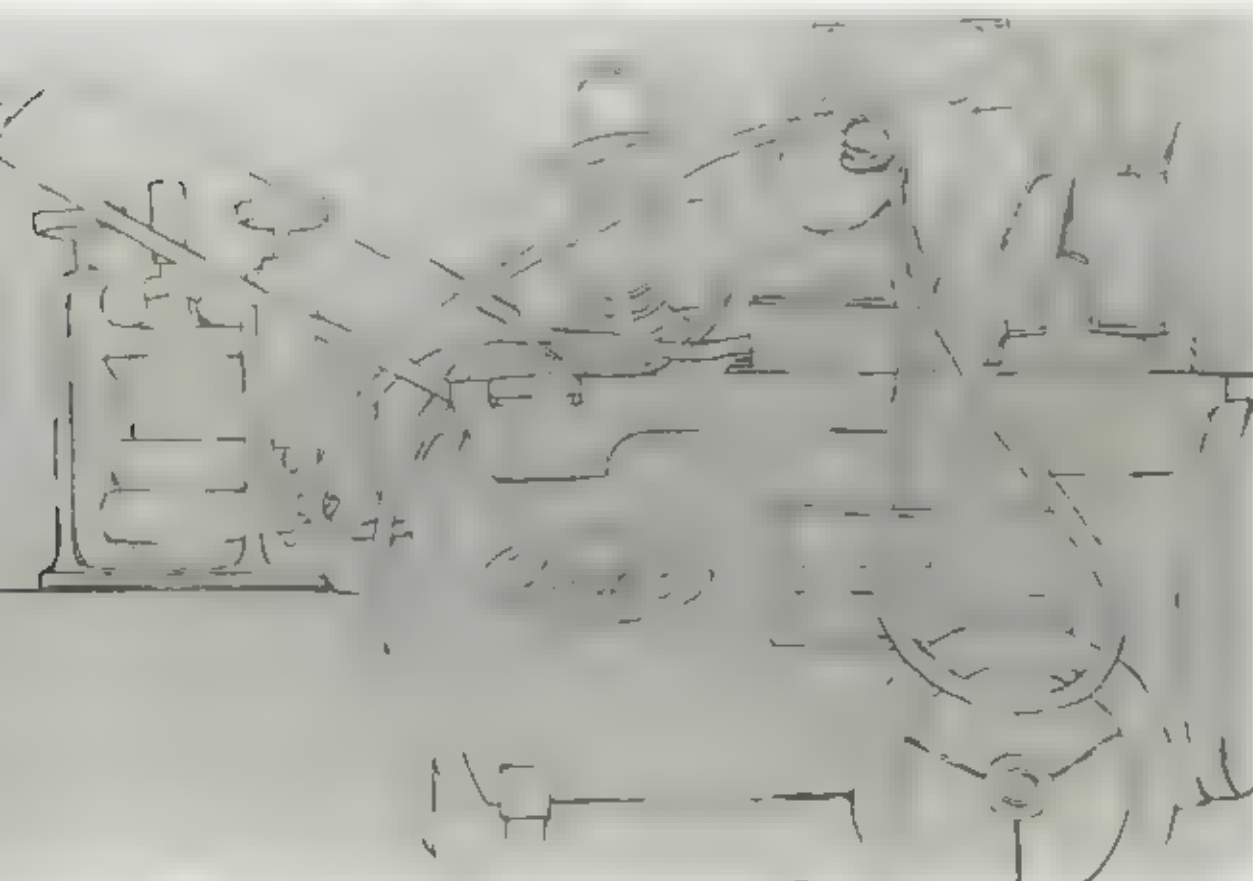

The clock in the dining room chimed ten just as the mirror over the bureau caught a glimpse of sunlight, capturing Paul's attention. Looking in the mirror, Paul studied his image. As a half-smile crept onto his pale face, he pulled the curtain closed and wheeled out of the room.

WILD HORSES

Running freely,
into the wind,
Manes twisting and entwining as the coolness rushes by Black, brown, and white mingle together -
A dull kaleidoscope of color, turning to gray in the distance.
Capturing the earthy scents in their noses
as they quickly dart around hills and tall grasses.
Freedom from man's changing world - for now to run and walk where they please To hear their own echoes of thundering hooves through caverns
To look toward the sun at day and Sleep by the moonglow at night.

MORNING

The sun is a red pool
among grey clouds.
The birds fly so high
They almost seem like gulls
In the sun's lake.

The trees wave in the wind,
Yet they have no leaves.

A school bus takes five kids,
Then goes along on its way.

The clouds make
The morning sinister and cool.

An ambulance cries in the distance
...
and a cross horn shatters the monotony of the early morning rush.

IF I WERE YOU

Too often when we wish the person to whom we communicate to heed our alitoooften misguided advice, we use the lead
'If I were you . . .'' and rattle on about how positive different and happy our petty lives would be if our minds were in our body,
if I were you.
Well, if I were you, I'd throw away the shoddy curtains which halt the sun from blessing the room with its sweet radiant glow.
If I were you, I'd forget about recalling the future and start thinking about what to do in the upcoming past.

I would wear frilly tuxedos on Thursdays ride horseback through the unexplored mountains on Fridays and to hell with the rest of the days
If I were you I'd climb trees, vote Republican, quit my job, and run through the Kansas cornfields laughing loving the sun
caught in the glow of it.
If I were you
I'd never question the unknown.
That's what I'd do if I were you.

PERSON POEM

Dressed for high altitude flight
In her electrically heated sheepskin boots, jacket and pants
She will accompany the bomber crew on its mission, with just her camera as her gun
Oxygen mask, flak vest and Mae West vest
she will wear as the others do.
She will face the same dangers as the crews.
She will learn well of the menacing fighters.
Through her mind will run the thought that maybe the escorting fighters can stay longer
She will pray the same prayer as the others do, . . . 'if only I can get back.'
She will watch in horror, helpless, as her comrades go down, wondering if she will be next.
When she gets home, she will be as glad as the others, knowing that her ordeal is over
But the bomber crews face the same tomorrow.

Lance Swier

He rides through the dirt like a rabbit with wheels.
Twisting
Turning
Jumping over hills,
seldom losing control.
Never afraid,
Never tense,
Just happy.
He's a dirt bike rider,
And he cares about nothing except the road ahead.
Nothing.
Until he's done
Then he's back to normal.

QISTO LITE MISPLACED

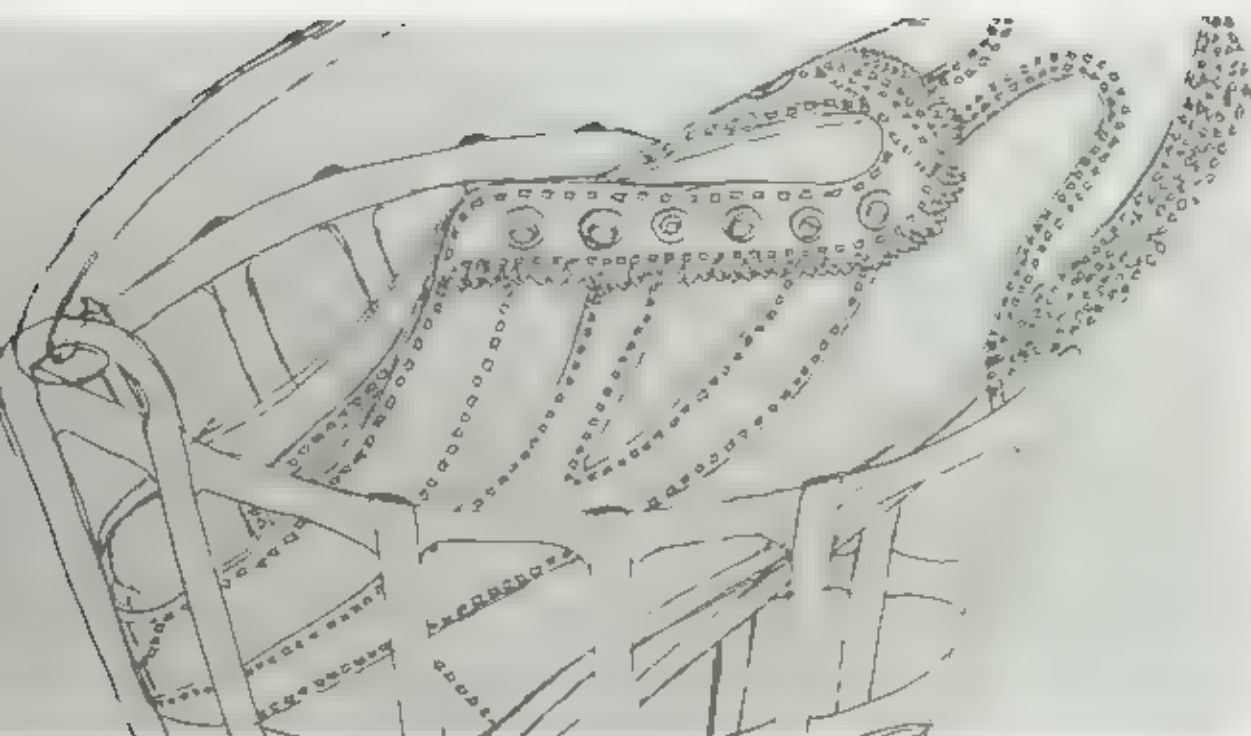

Once upon a mystical,
silver-mooned night,
Asleep on the tail of a falling blue star, Arrived a strange creature
once-called Qisto Lite, An outcast from a planet so foreign and far.

Although people knew Qisto wasn't the same
And one that no one could, in truth, understand,
She came to be called by a more-human name
And familiarized to a more-human land.

But I'm happy on the ground.

THE WOODMAN COMETH

All right, ladies, who is the most prominent sex-symbol on the screen today? Robert Redford or Al Pacino, you say? Well, I don't wish to upset you, but the sexiest man on the screen today wears black-rimmed glasses, has a big nose and is going bald. You've got it. It's the one and only Alvey Singer, better known as Woody Allen. If you gasped at this, it's most likely because Woody Allen is a sex symbol that men can relate to. He's the image of fumbling bedroom manners. He has, in fact, taken male sexual insecurities and made us able to laugh at our own sexual obsessions; he has become our most prominent star on the screen today.

One reason many men like Woody Allen is that he never gives up pursuit, even though he's been turned down by every voluptuous woman in town. In Play It Again, Sam he goes out of his way to make himself attractive to the women. When the wife of his best friend arranges a date for him, he makes a fool of himself by showing over-confidence in his masculinity. He is sure that his date is madly in love with him; unfortunately, the girl thinks Woody is a "jerk". She tells him to get lost. Woody is stunned by the girl's opinion of him. In the end we laugh because we see a man who tries hard but continuously fails.

Woody Allen isn't always being turned down by women. In Love and Death, he pursues, woos, and finally marries Dianne Keaton. In Annie Hall, he has no problem finding women, but he does have problems finding the right woman. He has a choice of many different women, but none suit him properly. Finally, he finds Dianne Keaton and they fall in love. The relationship is fine until, as in many relationships, things just don't work out. In these two films, we see Woody as a man whom women find attractive, although it took a little doing for Dianne Keaton to become attracted to Woody in Love and Death. Men identify with Woody in these two films: they feel that if beautiful women can fall in love with a bald, near-sighted neurotic, then beautiful women can fall in love with them, too.

Although Woody is appealing because he can gain and lose women, he's also appealing because he's neurotic and clumsy. It seems to strengthen our own masculinity to see a man who will admit that spiders scare him and that nature turns him off because, "It's disgusting the way animals eat other animals." There is also something strangely assertive about a man who refuses to go into a movie once the opening credits have begun.

So, ladies, you can keep your Robert Redfords and Al Pacinos. Give Woody Allen to the men. If I may speak for the entire male population, we love to see a man who never gives up hunting women, even after being turned down continuously. We also love to see a clumsy, neurotic "jerk" like Woody who can actually get beautiful women. It makes us feel optimistic about our own chances. Now you have it; Woody Allen, our most prominent sex symbol.

Nichole Daye sat among the thorny stems of tangled rose bushes. This was her "secret place," a five-by-eight plot of land now occupied by ragged, ivory roses. The warm August sun had long since dried the few tears that had haphazardly escaped her big, brown eyes and trickled down her face. The pain of the divorce was beginning to show its bad effects.

Nicki realized that to her the word "divorce" had begun to take on a new meaning. "Divorce" meant that she rarely saw her father, and what she saw of her mother she didn't like as much as she used to. Her mother was the reason that Nicki had fled to the isolation of the roses.

The sun began slowly to drop lower into the horizon. She realized that she had been outside for quite a while and dinner time was quickly approaching. She reluctantly whispered her good-byes to the silent roses. A soft breeze caused the flowers to nod back at her as if they, too, were sorry that she had to go. A faint smile appeared on her lips as she headed for the house.

The "house" was a small town house just outside of New York City. Nicki entered the living room and jumped onto a grey-blue sofa. The sofa and two wooden-framed chairs were the only furniture in the room. The musty, matted carpet stretched into the kitchen where Nicki's mother was fixing dinner.

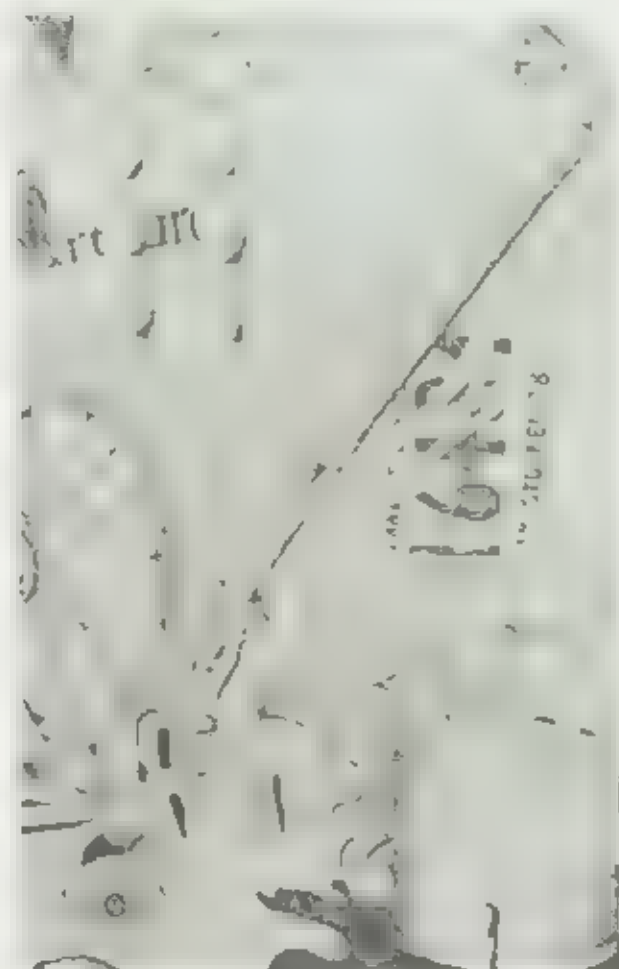

"Get in here and eat," Nicki's mother cried from the kitchen. "You should be able to tell time by now. Where were you? Lisa's? The park? You're out running around while I'm in here picking up after you."

"I was outside," Nicki mumbled to herself as she sank lower into her chair and began to pick at the dinner before her.

Day after day Nicki's mother seemed to become more quickly enraged than the day before. Nicki found herself separated from her friends because of all the hours she spent thinking in the solitude of the rose garden. The lazy, August days were quickly passing, but the summer's warmth still remained.

One day, Nicki lay on her stomach on the grass, her arms folded beneath her head, thinking about being grown-up. Creeping gingerly through the overgrown rose bushes, a pair of tiny green eyes flashed in the sunlight. Nicki lifted her head to see a small tabby cat peering out at her from within the bushes. She reached out her hand toward the golden kitten, but he jumped back in fright. Nicki stared, fascinated by the tiny cat who, in turn, was fascinated by the sad, lonely girl. The two of them lay there as the golden sun smiled down on the shabby rose bushes whose existence was being threatened by the strangling weeds.

"Sunny" became the cat's name since his golden hair reminded Nicki of the sunshine. Nicki carefully picked Sunny up and carried him home.

Nicki's mother didn't take kindly to Sunny. She felt a cat was useless except for causing problems. "The cat will only make more work for me around this crummy house. You always think of yourself, Nicole, never anyone else. You take me for granted, I never get one day off. You think I'm going to wait hand and foot on you? Sorry, you're in for a big surprise if you think . . ."

Nicki and Sunny were already out of the house before Nicki's mother had finished her speech. It was the same over and over again. Nicki's mother was sure that Nicki's only purpose in life was to make sure there was always more work. The speech used to be effective and made Nicki feel guilty, but after hearing it so much, Nicki learned to ignore it.

Sadly, Nicki placed Sunny on the soft, green grass she knew that once again her separating her from a friendship really wanted. She watched the kitten look up at her questioningly, then glance off in the distance at rows of town houses and alleys. Sunny trotted off without looking back to see Nicki's sad face as she waved good-bye.

The next morning was unusually cold. Gray clouds hung suspended in the overcast sky. Nicki ran out to the garden with a plastic cup half filled with milk that she'd saved from breakfast. To her dismay, the cat wasn't there waiting for her. She quickly dropped the milk near the garden as her mother's sharp voice called out to her to come inside immediately.

Nicki had forgotten to clean her room before she went outside, so now she wasn't allowed to leave. Nicki pleaded with her mother and told her that she just ran outside to get something, but her mother's decision was final.

Nicki sat alone in her room, tears rolling freely down her face. She wanted so much to see if Sunny was in the garden waiting for her. She remembered that through a window in the living room, she could see the rose garden. Nicki ran to the window to see a golden cat licking a milky white mustache off his face. Nicki smiled as she watched her cat but not for long. Behind her, her mother was scowling at her. She reluctantly began to walk back to her room. Nicki paused to look at a bric-brac of yellow photographs. The people, some at weddings, parties, picnics, were Nicki's grandparents and great aunts and uncles. They were all unfamiliar to Nicki because most of them were dead, but forever immortalized in black and white. Nicki turned away, longing to be the way her mother expected her to be.

The next day the threatening weather had subsided and the warmth had again appeared. Nicki's father was coming to visit and the house was in a turmoil. Nicki, overjoyed because she was going to see her father again, sang softly to herself as she danced from room to room cleaning. Nicki's mother, on the other hand, was angry. She knew her ex-husband was going to cause problems.

Nicki showed her father all her favorite parks and convinced him that it was a perfect day to go to the zoo. During dinner, he asked Nicki how things were going for her and her mother.

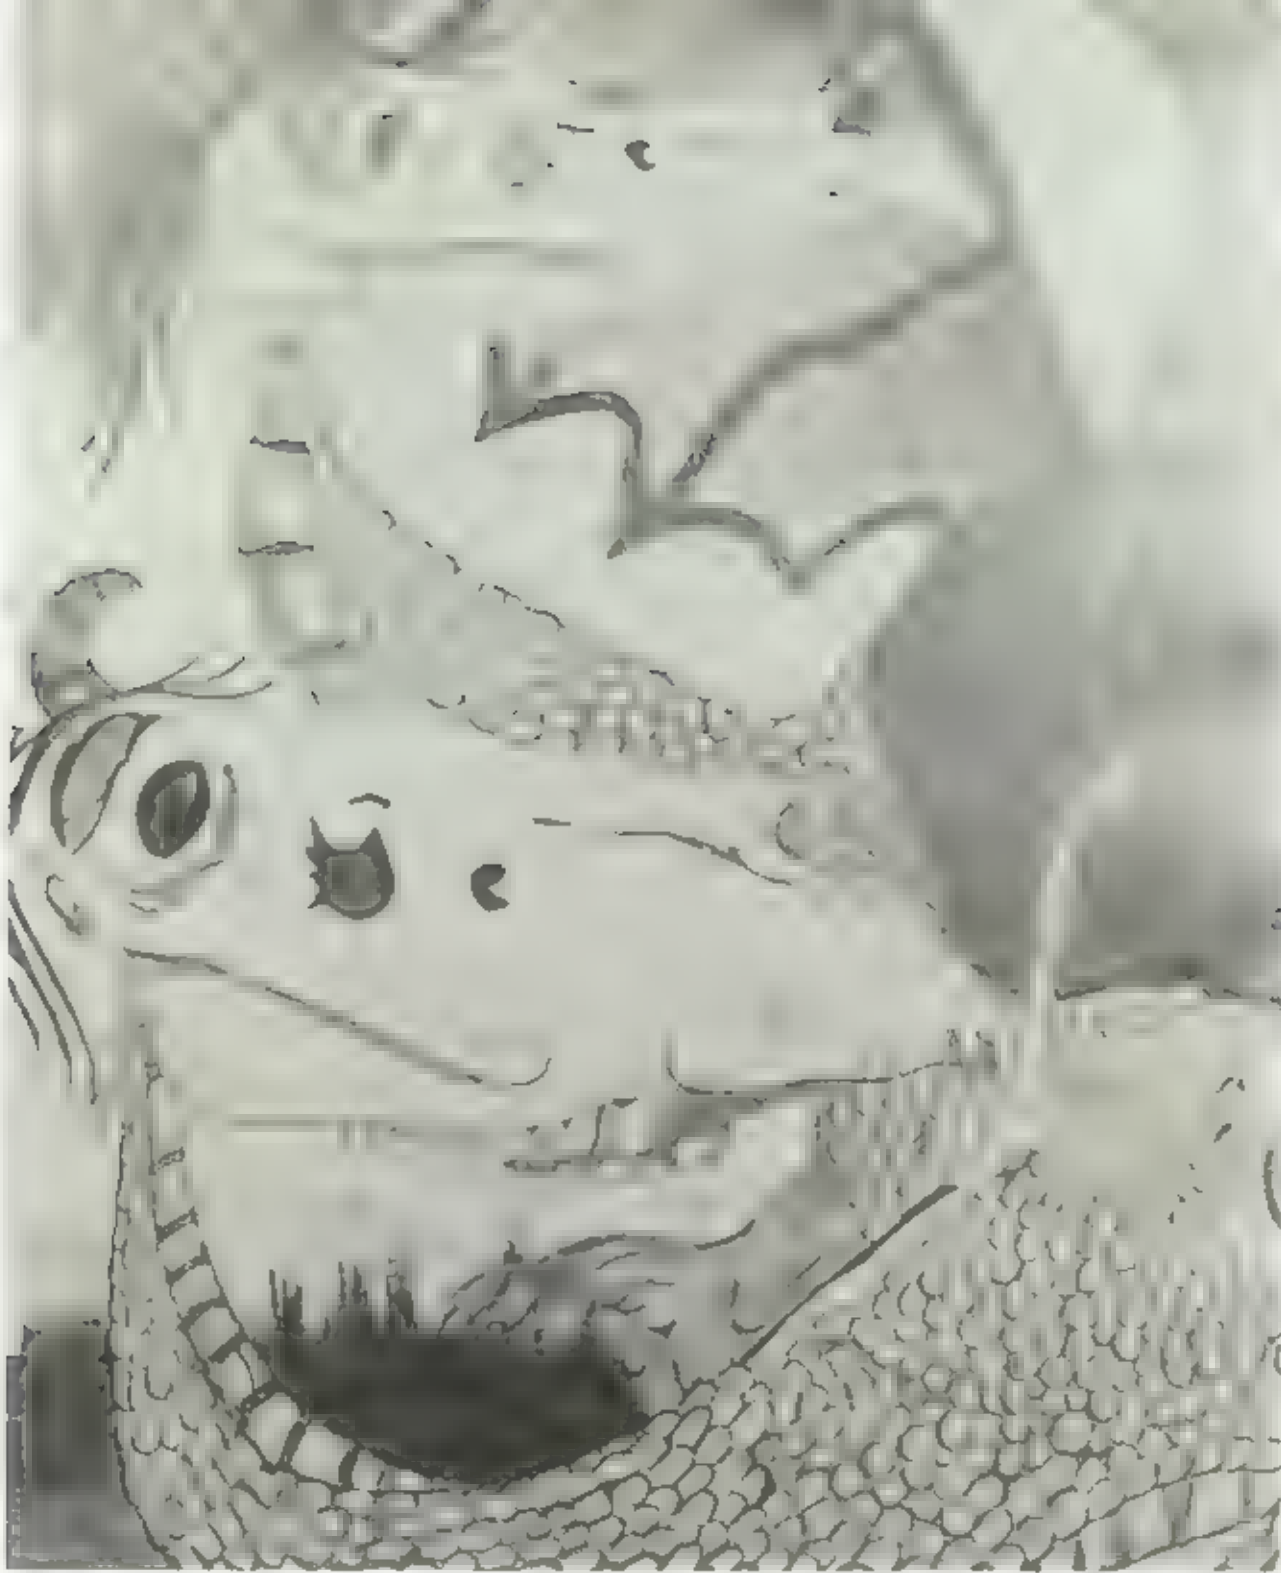

Nicki began to explain about Sunny and how her mother wouldn't allow her to keep him in the house. Nicki wondered to herself what her golden-haired friend was doing now.

That evening, Nicki's parents discussed the cat.

"That cat is causing problems," Nicki's mother complained, just above a whisper. "All I hear about is that crazy cat — first from Nicole, now from you. I don't need it so just get out of here." Her tone rose steadily as she spoke.

"It's not the cat you can't handle. It's Nicole. Face it. You expect too much from her." His voice was calm; she became furious.

"Get out and leave us alone. You and your daughter are out to get me, aren't you? I got rid of you and I can get rid of that cat just as easily, but permanently."

He walked out as she began searching the cabinets for rat poison.

The next morning when Nicki awoke, she could hardly believe it was morning. The only light in the sky was the occasional quick flash of heat lightning. The cautious sun was well hidden behind a gloomy wall of clouds that seemed to swell with moisture that it would soon disown. It was going to rain; that was inevitable, and rain hard.

Nicki put on her bathrobe and slippers, then walked into the kitchen. Nicki's mother looked older than usual. Dark rings circled her eyes, rings that told of the previous night's restlessness. She seemed hypnotized by the black sky.

She seemed preoccupied, unconcerned with Nicki's presence. Even as Nicki spoke to her, her gaze didn't break the unknown force that held her attention.

"Mother!" Nicki's high voice finally broke the thought pattern.

"Huh? Oh . . ." She stood up.

"Sunny . . . in the rain . . . lightning. It's dangerous . . ." Nicki's words seemed jumbled. "Mother! Can't I please?" Nicki's mother couldn't understand. "Can't I bring him in from the rain? I see him he's right over there," she pointed a little finger at the dull clump of cat laying beside the rose garden.

"Nicole!" Her mother was frightened by Nicki's request. "You can't! That cat, why? Nicki, baby, the cat is dead. I had to—" thunder clapped near by.

Nicki ran out in the pouring rain toward the cat's body. "It's not true," she told herself. She stopped half-way between the house and roses, and turned around to see her mother's anguished face just a few yards behind her. Tears mixed with the rain, hardly noticeable on their already wet faces.

The rain began to come down harder and harder. It beat down on the struggling ivory rose bushes that had no choice but to surrender and get trampled.

WHEN I WAS FIVE

I was five years old. I lived in California at the time. Every day I would go outside to watch the monsters across the street. One day my mom gave me a box of cracker jacks and I went outside with them. I was jumping rope with my jump rope. I had my cracker jack box in my hand while I was jumping. Then all of a sudden, I dropped my cracker jacks. The big monsters across the street started running over to eat my cracker jacks. They ate them all up. I had no more cracker jacks. I went in the house and I asked my mom if I could have another box of cracker jacks. She said, "No. What did you do with the other box I just gave you?"

"The monsters across the street ate them," I said.

My mom shouted, "You gave them to your friends, didn't you?"

"No, I didn't," I said.

"Yes, you did. Don't lie to me," my mom said.

"I told you that the monsters across the street ate them," I said.

Mom shouted, "Go to your room. There are no such things as monsters." I went in my room and started to cry. I used up about twenty tissues. Mom came in the room. She said, "Now what really happened to the cracker jacks?"

"I told you, the monsters ate them. Come here, I'll show you," I said. We walked to the window and I showed her the monsters. I said, "See the monsters across the street? They ate my cracker jacks."

Mom said sweetly, "Oh, honey, I'm sorry. Those aren't monsters; those are dogs. They're called Great Danes."

1978-79 was a year for record below zero temperatures, record snowfall, and snow days off from school. The snow was beautiful as it fell from the sky but after it accumulated, it caused nothing but problems. Winter sports were excellent this year. The snow made the ski slopes and toboggan slides exciting. The out-of-doors people enjoyed the snow; the drivers didn't. That's the way we view it.

Graduation means high school ends and a whole new life begins. For some it's a time of real joy; for others it's a time of sadness. That's the way we view it.

The 1978-79 school year is over. We can never re-live this part of our lives. The friendships we have made will remain in our hearts forever. The people we have met, both in school and out, have greatly affected our lives. Forest View has not only been a place to learn math, English, and science. It was a place to experience love and friendship and to learn about life. Although some of us will never return to Forest View, the flourishing courtyard, the long hallways and the crowded cafe will remain etched in our memories for the rest of our adult lives. But more importantly, our most vivid memories will be of the people: the strict science teacher, the dynamic coach, the understanding counselor and our best friends. These have all become part of us. We wouldn't be the same without the influences made by this wide variety of people and the treasured remembrances of the 1978-79 school year. That's the way we viewed it.

I won't insult you, like you do to everybody else, even if you do deserve it!
I'm glad I got to know you this year, because if a person doesn't get to know you he'll never understand your so-called humor (joke!) Acting was pretty fun, but ludich was better! I think you should have gotten kicked out more than Larry! (of the Library)
Umpiring will be fun this year, maybe I'll see you umpiring; we probably won't ever do it together, thank God! (just kidding!)
I hope you have a super summer, Party a lot (like you say RUSH!) I'll see you next year! Good luck next year and always! (But I still think you should re-read the umpire's rule book!) you need it!

See ya!
